... the Blaine managers appear to ... which would be developed by the adherents of Edmunds, Sherman and Logan standing firm but each confidently claims that they will show sufficient strength apart from that given Edmunds, to carry the day and this would indicate that the strength of one or the other of these leaders has been over rated or that one can outweigh the strength of the other after the early balloting. What the respective strength of the Blaine and the Arthur following is has certainly baffled the judgment of the closest observers as the tactics of the Arthur men has been to pursue a very quiet canvass and they have certainly made no exhibit. It is universally admitted that these two have the leading positions in the race and the problem then resolves itself in the case either one is sufficiently near the goal to secure enough votes from the states named to insure victory. As the friends of the other candidates contend that in such an alternative a new name will in all likelihood be sprung on the convention it would seem that one or the other of the two leading candidates will have to begin the fight in the convention at the outset with near or quite sufficient votes to carry with them the nomination.

Connecticut declares it will support Hawley but the impression prevails that the strength of that state in the use of an early break will go to Edmunds.

ORGANIZATION EFFECTED.

The meeting of the Minnesota delegation was held at the Grand Pacific hotel at 10 this morning. D M Sabin was chosen chairman of the delegation and O H Graves secretary. The following were elected to represent Minnesota on the various committees: Vice president of the committee, A Barlow; assistant secretary of the committee, C H Graves; member of the committee on resolutions, Liberty Hall; on permanent organization, A B Goold; rules and order of business, L H Armstrong; on credentials, R D Langdon. The member of the national committee will be chosen after the nomination for president is made. On motion it was resolved that before each ballot and vote in the convention the roll shall be called and the chairman shall announce the votes.

The Kansas delegation to-day effected an organization as follows: Senator P B Plumb, chairman; C Leland Jr, secretary.

The Oregon delegation elected Senator J N Dolph chairman.

Ohio organized this afternoon as follows: J B Foraker chairman, E L Sampson secretary of the delegation, A L Conger, member of the national committee; Edward Cowles, vice president; Clarence E Brown, assistant secretary; Mark A Hannah, committee on credentials; Samuel Craighead, committee on permanent organization; Alphonso Hart, committee on rules and order of business; William McKinley, committee on resolutions; N S Fields, assistant sergeant at arms.

The Arizona delegation has made the following: Vice-president, L H Goodrich; committee on credentials, Clark Churchill; permanent organization, A H Stebbins; rules and order of business, Clark Churchill; resolutions, A H Stebbins; member of the national committee, Clark Churchill.

ADDITIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

Organizations of state delegations were made to day as follows, in addition to those previously reported:

New Mexico — Vice-president and committee on permanent organization and resolutions, Eugenio Romero; secretary and committee on credentials and rules, W H H Llewellyn. The member of the national committee will be chosen later.

California — Chairman, W W Morrow; vice president, William Johnston; committee on credentials, David McClure; resolutions, Horace Davis; organization, Thomas R Bard; rules, William Parks.

Colorado — Chairman, W A Hamill; secretary and committee on rules, Alex Gullet; credentials, A A Hamill; ... A Albert; organization, C C Davis; vice president, Benjamin F Crowell.

Connecticut — President, Augustus Brandegee; credentials, Eugene S Boss; organization, E S Henry; resolutions, John S Houston; rules, E G Hill.

Maryland — Chairman, Hart B Holton; secretary, C T Wescott; credentials, John T Ensor; resolutions, Thomas Wallace; organization, Thomas S Hodson; vice president, McPherson Scott; rules, George L Wellington; member of the national committee, Joseph E Garry.

Maine — Chairman, George C Wing; secretary, Austin Harris; vice president, ... R Boda; credentials, A Mass; all Haynes; resolutions, A P Wise; well rules, E H Drummond; organization, D E Crockett; member of the national committee, Chas A Bartell.

Mississippi — Chairman, B K Bruce; vice president, R F Beck; credentials, John Galbreath; organization, Thomas Richardson; resolutions, Congressman Lynch; rules and order, W H Allen; member of the national committee, James Hill.

AN EDMUNDS MEETING

A meeting of Edmunds friends was held in the rooms of the Massachusetts delegation at the Leland hotel this morning. There were about 100 persons present, including representatives from Massachusetts, Vermont, New York, New Hampshire, Michigan, Minnesota and Missouri. Senator Hoar of Massachusetts presided. Addresses were made by the chairman, ex-Governor Smith and Frederick Billings of Vermont, George William Curtis, Theodore Roosevelt, ex-Governor Long of Massachusetts and delegates from Minnesota and Michigan. No resolution was passed or other formal action taken, but the purport of all the speeches was that Edmunds' friends would stand by him till he is nominated or till the convention should offer the name of a man representing the principles which Senator Edmunds' name stands for.

THE COAST DELEGATION

The Pacific coast delegation to day has been visiting a number of state delegations. The Iowa, Colorado and a number of other delegations called at the Pacific coast headquarters this morning. The Colorado delegation to-day formed an alliance with the Pacific delegation which now consists of California, Oregon, Nevada and Colorado to work as a unit for Blaine's nomination.

J C Finlayson secretary of the Pacific coast delegation said to an associated press reporter to-day that the situation seems to have been changed and that Blaine's chances are undoubtedly improved. Every member of the coast delegation has been a hard and enthusiastic worker in the field. Their sleeves had been rolled up day and night and they were going in for Blaine and victory.

W H Parker said: There has been an immense amount of trading to-day. Arthur's forces are sweeping all round. They have been to see Ohio, Pennsylvania and Indiana. The latter has been promised that the support of the Arthur delegation is to be given Ben Harrison if Arthur fails to get the nomination after a few ballots have been cast on condition that Indiana supports the Arthur party in the fight. Finlayson in another conversation said: The kindergarten delegate, Mr Fred Crocker, is one of the hard workers of the coast delegation. He is working in connection with State Senator Foster of New York. Finlayson also says that when Blaine is nominated the credit must and will be given the united delegations from the Pacific slope.

Senator Powell Clayton announced this morning that he was going to work for Blaine. The Arkansas delegation was addressed this morning by Collector Robertson of New York who said that Blaine could certainly carry New York while there was a doubt about Arthur being able to secure it. The meeting was a stormy one and when it adjourned without action it was said that the delegation then stood nine for Blaine and five for Arthur.

To-night the members of the Pacific coast delegation visited Texas and other southern delegations at the Sherman house, where they were received with ringing cheers. W W Morrow and others made ringing speeches. When the party left for the Grand Pacific the cheers for Blaine and California could be heard blocks away. The California people with their helpers from Colorado, Nevada and Oregon will make the rounds of all the other hotels to night for the purpose of visiting the different delegations.

THE INDIANA DELEGATION

The Indiana delegation met this morning completed organization and adjourned until 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Blaine men are anxious that Harrison shall not go into the fight and their influence was felt in the meeting where considerable opposition to placing Harrison in nomination was manifested. It is said the Hon Richard Thompson doubted the advisability of presenting his name to the convention. What the outcome will be it is impossible now to state but the contest is considered close.

The crowning incident of the day was the action taken by the Indiana delegation with respect to the candidacy of Senator Benjamin Harrison. Early in the forenoon Mr Harrison was requested to quit the headquarters for any one reasons and he retired to his room. The delegation then balloted assiduously through a three hours session as to the stand they would take in the convention. The proposition to present the name of Mr Harrison was carried by a fair majority but unanimous vote could not be obtained owing to the intervention of friends of Gresham. It was urged by them that Gresham could not allow his name to be urged in view of his cabinet position but the friends of Harrison urged that that fact ought not to militate against the candidacy of Harrison and that under the circumstances the friends of Gresham should give way. It was further contended that if Senator Harrison could go into the convention with the solid delegation it would prove a strong reconsideration in his favor as both the only one of the doubtful states to come in with an unbroken front. These arguments were all weighed in the Gresham adherents who refused to come into line. They argued that if the delegation was allowed to go into the convention with their hands full and it was demonstrated that neither Blaine nor Arthur could be nominated, and any considerable number of votes were cast for either Gresham or Harrison then it was their should give her entire vote to the one showing the greatest strength. This was the final decision of the delegation after the second conference which began at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Harrison it is understood will therefore go with his people into the convention, but Richard W Thompson will not appear at their head. The vote of the state will be given to Blaine and Arthur very equally with possibly two votes for Gen Sherman.

THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE

The national committee resumed its session at 12:15 this afternoon. Joseph E Lee appeared as proxy for William A Stokes of Florida. The sub committee through Horace Davis chairman to which was referred the case of the contesting delegation from the first Georgia district presented its report. The report declares that the committee considered only the proceedings of the district convention as bearing on the prima facie case of the two parties and did not go into the merits of the split prior to the convention but the committee deemed on the whole, that the prima facie case was with Alex N Wilson and Laurie ... and their alternates.

Mr DeVeaux moved as an amendment that the matter be referred to the committee on credentials and that no names be placed upon the rolls.

Mr DeVeaux then moved as a substitute that the names of Johnson and Green be placed upon the rolls; defeated. The report of the committee was then adopted.

Senator Jones reported verbally in the matter of the first Alabama district in favor of Slaughter and Treat. The report was adopted without debate.

Senator Platt reported in the matter of the contest in the Twenty second Pennsylvania district, putting upon the roll Magee and Flynn. Adopted without debate.

With respect to the contest in the Twenty first Pennsylvania district, the committee recommended that neither Sayres nor Wentling be placed on the rolls. This would give Mr. Wentling the only delegate from a district where the seat was not contested.

The committee's report that neither Sayres nor Wentling had been regularly elected.

Senator Jones asked if the committee intended to disfranchise the district?

Mr Magee thought as the presidential preference of the two contestants were the same both should be admitted and be given half a vote each.

A vote was taken upon the report of the committee and it was adopted.

Mr Runnell of Iowa in the matter of the Sixth New York district reported in favor of John O'Brien and Mathew B Brady. The report was adopted without debate.

In the matter of the Nineteenth New York the same committee reported in favor of George Campbell and Hiram Griggs being placed upon the roll. Adopted without debate.

In the matter of the Fifth Kentucky district the committee reported in favor of admitting Silas F Miller and John Mason Brown. Adopted without debate.

Same action was taken in favor of Edward Farley and P C Bragg.

THE SECOND ILLINOIS CONTEST

In the matter of the second Illinois district, Senator Aldrich submitted a majority report in favor of admitting W J Powell and W E Kent.

Mr Kent of Maine submitted a minority report in favor of W H Ruger.

Mr Cook of Illinois moved as a substitute that the names of Ruger and Piper be inserted instead of the names reported by the majority of the committee.

Mr Beattie supported the recommendation with a long written report giving his version of the contest. The contest was due to the reapportionment of congressional districts by which certain members of the district came became residents of another district but joined in the call for the primaries which resulted in the election of persons recommended. The contestants were chosen by the convention called by the district committee which claimed to have been regularly elected by a popular vote.

The substitute was adopted by a by a vote of twenty two to twenty.

A vote was then ordered upon the report of the committee as amended the substitute being regarded as a form of amendment. Adopted by a vote of twenty-three to nineteen.

In the matter of the fourth Maryland the committee reported in favor of James W Gordon and Henry W Rogers. Adopted without debate.

Mr Magee moved reconsideration of the vote in the matter of the twenty first Pennsylvania. Carried. He then moved that the name of Mr Sayres be placed upon the roll. Carried.

Mr Martin then offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of this committee are due to the citizens of Chicago generally and separately to the committees of arrangements and finance, charged with the duty of finding a suitable place of meeting and making other provisions for the assembling of the national republican convention, and for the ample and careful arrangements perfected by them.

POWELL CLAYTON ELECTED TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN

The chair stated that nominations would be in order for temporary chairman of the national convention.

Mr Runnels of Iowa rose to offer the name of Senator George F Hoar of Massachusetts, a gentleman who in the most exciting features of the convention of four years ago had presided with that rare wisdom which had commended him to the good opinion of every delegate in that body. Paul Strobach of Alabama seconded the nomination.

The member from Louisiana said he voiced the sentiment of the southern states in according all honor to Senator Hoar, and would doubtless live to our bit chosen for the permanent chairmanship but in the distribution of the honors to be conferred by the convention he bought as a recognition of southern republicanism that in naming a man for a position not fraught with patronage it could grant it be given to a southern republican. He named I wel Clayton of Arkansas. Mr Conady of North Carolina seconded the nomination.

Mr Stone of Michigan said in obedience to a vote of his delegation he desired to nominate J B Well Barr of Michigan.

Mr Magee of Pennsylvania nominated Galusha A Grow of Pennsylvania.

The vote resulted as follows:

Clayton — California, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Arizona, Dakota, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Washington territory, Wyoming, Utah — total 17.

Senator Hoar — Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, District of Columbia — total 12.

Grow — Delaware, Pennsylvania — total 2.

Hoar — Arkansas, Michigan — total 2.

A motion to make the vote unanimous brought out three dissenting votes.

Mr Clayton said: Gentlemen of the committee I deem it proper to return thanks for the honor you have conferred upon me not as being rendered to me personally but to the south I represent. I also accept it with pleasure as having to support and whatever name is to be brought up the nomination of candidate for president. In fulfilling the functions of the office if the chair be any mistakes they will get themselves (let me assure you) be of the head and not the heart.

The committee adjourned until 11 o'clock to-morrow.

SOME ESTIMATES

Mahone of Virginia has prepared a table of estimates as to the standing of the convention at the outset. He says that the Arthur will have 372 votes on the first ballot. That Blaine will have 330 on the same ballot and he also predicts a third candidate in the second ballot.

Thomas Wheeler of Syracuse, who claims to know whereof he speaks, says that if it is in favor of Blaine not to beat Arthur and that the ticket is for Blaine.

Ben Harrison of Indiana says he is not a candidate in any sense and will try to prevent the use of his name. The Indiana delegation ... convention. He will do his best as a friend's insist on naming him he declines to be.

The Vermont delegation at a meeting this afternoon chose Governor J Gregory Smith chairman and Colonel ... secretary. The vice president and various committees will be chosen to-morrow morning.

Indiana organized this afternoon as follows: Chairman R W Thompson; secretary J B Benny; vice president, P C Vass; assistant secretary, Eugene Hay; member of the national committee, John C New; committee on resolutions John H Baker; committee on credentials J H Maltel; committee on rules and order of business George G Riley; committee on permanent organization George B Williams.

The Arkansas delegation met at the Palmer house this morning. There were present also a number of delegates from other southern states. Speeches as the firmly the great popularity of Blaine were made by Collector Robertson of New York and others.

The organization of the Oregon delegation is as follows: Vice president, Senator Dolph; assistant secretary, A G Hovey; committee on credentials, O N Denny; committee on permanent organization, J M Swift; committee on rules, J T Apperson; committee on resolutions, W J McConnell; member of the national committee, J T Apperson.

AN APPEAL FOR BLAINE

A circular bearing the title "New York for Blaine — The Voice of the Empire State Calling Upon the Convention to Lead to Victory" will be given out to-morrow. It will read as follows:

To the National Republican Convention: The republican districts of the state of New York under the rule of direct popular representation have declared emphatically and unmistakably for James G Blaine and this is their message to the national convention. Blaine can get more votes in the state of New York than any other man and can carry the state triumphantly. An analysis of the republican representation in the national convention and the basis of the presidential vote of 1880 shows that from President Arthur's state a decided majority of the delegates to the convention are opposed to his nomination, that the overwhelming preference of delegates from districts giving republican majorities is for Blaine, that twelve republican districts and four democratic districts are for Blaine as five other districts send Edmunds or Arthur delegates while the balance of the republican districts send delegates for Arthur the large majority of his support coming from the democratic districts. That is the Blaine districts cast an aggregate of ... republican majority against 74% republican majority in the Arthur districts while 51% democratic majority in the Blaine districts and 4,340 democratic majority in the Arthur districts.

BLAINE THE LEADER

These facts and figures are conclusive that in New York as in other states where electoral votes may be given to a republican candidate for president the direct republican expression is in favor of J G Blaine's nomination. Indeed he is the accepted leader of the republican party to a sure victory. In full confidence that with James G Blaine as the republican standard bearer the state of New York will give him its electoral vote, the undersigned delegates from that state commend the above statement to the favorable consideration of the national convention.

FRED DOUGLAS ARRIVES

Fred Douglas arrived to day and was probably the most eagerly listened to man among the crowd at the Sherman house. More than one attempt was made to worry him by reference to his recent marriage. He with difficulty preserved his temper and retorted good naturedly. Douglas said the colored delegates being most in the charge ... felt bound to vote for Arthur but when the break came the bulk of their votes would undoubtedly go to Logan.

It is stated that the South Carolina delegation as a meeting in any resolved to vote as a unit for Arthur as long as he is in the field. Should he withdraw it is believed the delegation will divide between Logan and Sherman.

The Texas delegation met twice to day for the purpose of organizing and adjourned each time without action. It meets again to-morrow morning. It is said the chief care on why the delegation failed to organize to-day is a bitter personal dispute between a Blaine negro delegate (Cuney of Galveston) and an Arthur man (General Mallory, collector of customs at that port) as to which of the two shall represent Texas on the national committee.

TILDEN NOT A CANDIDATE

Washington June 2. — The Post has the following editorial to-day: The democratic voters of the United States are entitled to know that Samuel J Tilden does not aspire to be president again. He will not be a candidate before the Chicago convention and will not accept the nomination under any circumstances. The convention will meet in deliberation and to select the strongest man, and whether this man is Bayard, Cleveland, Field, Morrison, McDonald or Carlisle it is for the convention to determine.

NOTABLE DEAD

A WALL STREET CHARACTER

New York June 2. — [Special] — One of the most prominent characters in Wall street of recent date died suddenly yesterday afternoon at the Windsor hotel — "Old Uncle Jo," as he was better known on the street. Old Uncle Jo was stricken with apoplexy while seated in a chair in his room. For the last five or six years Mr M... had been a special partner in the ... of Samuel W B ... for a long time had been the principal broker for Keene, whose commissions he figured up in the hundreds of thousands a year. Shortly after the break down in the Villard securities Mills stated to friends that he did lose in those stocks had cost him $600,000 or ...

ENGLAND

THE RECENT EXPLOSIONS

London June 2. — It is believed by many people here that the explosions were not the doings of Irish-American but of Anglo-Irishmen. The dynamite was weak and was probably made in England. Very little is any of it could have been imported. It is now regarded as the work of the dynamite leaders in New York have for some time been sending the inability of sending dynamite to England. The new leader of the explosions will be all the more anxious for the field in London. The paper [illegible] is that the dynamiters aimed to concentrate public excitement upon Trafalgar square in order to obtain a clear field for operations elsewhere. The conspirators hoped to cause an immense rush of people from St James park and other resorts in the vicinity and calculated that the explosion in Scotland Yard would still further distract the attention of the police and the public, increase the panic and leave the way clear for an attack on the government offices and houses of parliament. The London press will at once renew a demand that the effect of the outrages will be to secure the conviction and long terms of imprisonment for Daly, Egan and McDonald, who are now on trial at Birmingham for treason felony in connection with dynamite conspiracies.

MARK LANE REVIEW

London June 2. — The Mark Lane Express in a weekly review of the British grain trade says: Despite the dry weather and cold east and north west winds of last week the wheat crop is more than usually promising. The plant is excellent and would soon respond to suitable weather. If the season is favorable there is the making of a greater than the average crop. In the off coast market there is little desire for business. There were three arrivals, three cargoes were sold, two were withdrawn and one remains.

GERMANY

BISMARCK STILL SORE

Berlin June 2. — [Special] — A feeling of soreness now exists in official circles in Berlin over the Lasker incident. It is now given out that it will probably be a long time before a successor is appointed to Eisendecher. It is also intimated that the office will remain vacant until a successor to Sargent has been appointed and that the character of the German legation here will depend entirely upon whether Bismarck happens to like ... the representative who may be sent to ... the United States.

Important News from Mexico

From a dispatch just received from Guaymas, Mexico, it is learned that yellow fever has again broken out there. Steps are being taken to stop all communication between Hermosillo and Guaymas. Five states have declared war against President Gonzales on account of the revenue stamp tax. Troops are being moved from Guaymas to the interior.

New Rooms Opened

The new rooms of the produce exchange lately purchased by them were opened this morning. President Charles Clayton made the opening address. A large crowd of members and their friends were present. A banquet followed the formal opening.

Death from Morphine.

Henry Hobe, secretary of the Odd Fellows Mutual Aid society, took an overdose of morphine yesterday. He died in the hospital this morning.

Sudden Death at Astoria

Astoria June 2. — [Special] — Isaac Foster, proprietor of the Stramboo Exchange corner O R & N Co's dock, died suddenly this afternoon, of paralytic apoplexy.

Opinion of Mr. Mott, Late Government Chemist, on Allcock's Porous Plaster.

My investigation of Allcock's Porous Plaster shows it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not present in any other Plaster. I also find them are so perfectly proportioned that the Allcock's Porous Plaster will not cause Blisters or Excessive Irritation, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other Plaster.

HENRY A MOTT Jr, P D, F C S.,

WASHINGTON

Washington Notes

Washington June 2. — Blaine left for Augusta, Me., this afternoon.

The comptroller of the currency has declared a final dividend of 11½ per cent in favor of the creditors of the Miners national bank of Georgetown, Colorado.

House

Washington June 2.

Under call of states the following resolutions were introduced and referred:

By Stockslager calling on the secretary of the interior for the names of all persons with whom contracts have been made or furnishing Indian supplies; also a resolution calling on the secretary of war for similar information relative to supplies.

By Eldridge fixing the 23d of June as the date of final adjournment.

The house then took up the legislative appropriation bill with amendments reported by committee of the whole.

The amendment prohibiting committee clerks from performing work of a private character for members was rejected.

The amendment exempting all distilleries which mash to bushels or less from operation of the provisions of title 35 of the revised statutes except as payment of tax was adopted — yeas 18, nays 4.

The remaining amendments were agreed to and the bill passed.

Hiscock moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill repealing internal revenue tax on tobacco, allowing the use of alcohol free of tax in the arts and manufactures and repealing the tax on brandy from fruits.

Converse of Missouri moved that the house adjourn and this was at 2:15 carried — yeas 87, nays 90.

TO AMEND THE BANKING LAWS

Washington June 2. — Representative Buchner to-day introduced a bill to amend the national banking laws. It provides for the increase of stock of banks from time to time with the approval of the comptroller for more frequent examinations and reports and for the punishment of malfeasance of bank officials in office by imprisonment for from five to twenty years.

THE MEXICAN TREATY

Washington June 2. — Representative Stewart of Texas to-day introduced a bill authorizing the president to issue a proclamation carrying into effect the Mexican reciprocal treaty whenever he is satisfied the president of Mexico has issued similar proclamation.

Senate

Washington June 2.

Jones presented a resolution of the Louisiana legislature expressing the gratitude of that state to the United States senate for passage of the education bill and requesting the Louisiana members to urge its passage in the house.

The following bills were then passed:

House bill fixing the rate of postage on mail matter of the second class when sent by persons other than publishers or news agents.

Bill making the cities of Tacoma and Seattle, Washington territory, ports of delivery.

Bill introduced by Miller of California providing for the execution of article 2 of the supplemental commercial treaty of November 7, 1880, between the United States and China, for the suppression of the opium trade.

Bill to establish forest preservation on the head waters of the Missouri river and on the headwaters of Clark's Fork of the Columbia river.

Bill introduced by Slater to grant to the Astoria and Winnemucca Railroad Company the right of way through public lands and the right to construct bridges over navigable water courses.

Bill for the relief of the Nez Perce Indians in Idaho and of allied tribes residing upon the Grand Ronde Indian reservation. It gives members of the tribes named lands in severalty in lieu of lands given by the treaties of 1855 and 1863. Adjourned.

BIG DAY'S WORK

Washington June 2. — Twenty five democrats and thirteen republicans took part in the proceedings of the senate to-day. Ninety five measures were brought up of which forty were passed. This was the largest day's work of the session. Among the senators present were Edmunds, Sherman, Logan, Hawley and Allison.

Women need not expect to get into a college as long as Noah Porter is president, so says the ... The whole duty of Yale in regard to the education of women is begun and ended when it has done its duty by its young men. Her young men as they become teachers, doctors, preachers and lawyers will have their influence on women and in formation of woman's character. The college is likely to have as many young men as her instruction can well attend to and it is not the duty of the college to furnish instruction for women.

Sara Bernhardt according to special Paris advices has made a great hit as Lady Macbeth. The New York Herald's foreign critic who gets his information direct says that she was a white jersey ... fitting as a glove, no corsets. This startling piece of realism is followed by the announcement that as she took her seat at the banquet she dressed in her white jersey and danced with twelve Highlanders in white clothes seated at her right and left the table was for a moment suggestive of the last supper.

Robert Laird Collier writes to the Boston Herald that being a drinker of water, he is often told in England that the indigestion of the American nation and the leathery complexions of the Yankees are the result of drinking ice water. On the other hand the boasting countenances of the English come from indulging in something stronger than cold. Alams ... Mr Collier writes: "The Church of England Temperance society is upon the whole the most promising agency in England in the reform movement. Clergymen and ministers of religion drink pretty much as freely as any other class of persons, and their private and public example in England is probably greater than in any other Protestant country. Within about two years considerable number of clergymen and ministers have become total abstainers and it is for the first time not wholly exceptional for one to decline wine at the dinner table and in public."

A Turquoise Legend

Cornhill Magazine

There was once a king of that country so well skilled in magic as to make a bow of pure gold whose arrows never failed of dealing death and which therefore was guaranty of perpetual victory. The king being attacked by another was by defeated the aggressor. The daughter of the conqueror married the son of the conquered king and the husband prevailed on his wife to obtain possession of the bow and substitute another just like it in its place. This she did in ignorance of its virtue but the result was that her father in his turn was conquered and compelled to fly. A demon informing him of the source of his misfortune, he seized his daughter and drawing his scimitar prepared to kill her but before he did so she had time to predict that in order to afford in future ages an enduring proof of her innocence the blood that she shed should be turned into pearls. And it was so: the spot where she was slain is still the place where men discover the loveliest and fairest pearls.

A Chinese Wedding

The Calaveras Prospect tells us notice of a Chinese wedding, which occurred in that section. Mr Ah Ho, a prominent citizen in Chinese circles in Amador county, was on Tuesday last united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mrs Ah You, relict of Dr Ah You of this place and a leader of fashion in the ... ward of San Andreas. The ceremony was performed by Judge Patrick Henry Kean in his office. Owing to the ... of the bride opposing the marriage it was thought best to seize the early morn as the proper moment and tie the knot in the presence of only two friends of the bride. Mrs Ah You was dressed in some flowing blue silk ... and tunic overskirt hair a la pompadour. Mr Ah Ho wore a brand new suit of broadcloth and Japanese ... Mr Ah Boo ... a fine pair of pants neatly polished with stove-pipe hat and sheath ... Why the Irish Tenant has no Fruit

Popular Science Monthly

When traveling in Ireland — I explored the country rather exhaustively when editing the fourth edition of Murray's Handbook — I was surprised at the absence of fruit trees in the small farms where one might expect them to abound. On speaking of this the reason given was that all trees are the landlord's property: that if a tenant should plant them they would suggest luxury and prosperity, and therefore a raise of rent, or otherwise stated, the tenant would be fined for thus improving the value of his holding. This was before the passing of the land act which we may hope will put an end to such legalized brigandage. With the abolition of rack renting the Irish peasant may grow and eat fruit, may even taste jam without fear and trembling, may grow rhubarb and make pies and puddings in defiance of the agent. When this is the case his craving for potato potash may probably diminish and his children may actually feed on bread.

The Unsentimental Boy.

"Zax" in the San Francisco ...

Boys are proverbially unsentimental creatures. I was visiting a school not long ago, when word was received from Idaho that the father of one of the boys had died suddenly. The ... bereaved one is only ten years old and his name is Tom. Mr Johns, one of the teachers was deputized to tell Tom the sad news. The kind hearted teacher talked with the boy an hour or so, and when he thought he had worked Tom into a real good and tender mood broke it to him gently that his father was dead. What did Tom do? Did he weep and wail and sob? Hardly. He gave a long loud whistle and said in a tone of regret, "Cracky! I can't suppose neither it o ... save a cent now." Then he sat down and wrote his mother as follows: "I am Mother, Mister Jons ... old me pa is ded. But I ain't goin' to mind. Mister Jons say I will die besor long myself. Then I will meet pa. In heaven or Hell, I don't know which. The dinner bell is ringing. We have pie to-day so no more at present. TOM."

Ten tramps, committed and fined in Mattoon, Illinois, under the vagrancy act, were given a choice between a bread and water diet or square meals with work in the chain gang until their fines are paid. They chose the latter.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

Senator Edmunds was particularly cordial toward the members of the American Medical Association whom he met in Chicago because, says the graceless gossips, he owns the biggest tombstone quarry in Vermont. Another campaign slander.

Harry Pearson, the actor, had many ups and downs. At one time he was not only well-to-do but rich as riches go. Bad ventures and failing health robbed him of both money and skill in his art. However, and when he died, in Chicago he was very poor.

Major Ben Perley Poore is the oldest newspaper correspondent in Washington. He has been writing from the capital for over thirty continuous years and it is only a short while since he gave up telegraphic work and gave himself up to correspondence.

George ... remarked the skeleton of the lamented James K Polk gently tapping the skull of the late Mr Dallas to attract the deceased statesman's attention, the demand for the old ticket keeps up. Isn't it most time for you and me to put in our bid?

Billy Birch the negro minstrel says that there are only three democratic presidential candidates: viz Tilden who objects to being nominated, Ben Butler who objects to being left and Holman of Indiana who objects to everything. Level headed man, that Birch.

A well known New York landscape painter, says Harper's Weekly, who may be said — as once said of himself — to see nothing, but to feel everything, makes the following general criticism on Henry Irving: "He is actually so unnatural that when he is natural it electrifies you!"

David Boyce, tax collector of Mount Joy borough, has put Thomas Ferguson in prison because he refused to pay his school tax, amounting to $2.10, the law allowing a collector to take the body when a refusal to pay the tax is made. It is the first case of the kind ever known in the county.

David Langdon of East Rockaway, L I, is 90 years of age and says he was never tired but once in his life, and that was in 1812 when on military duty. He was stationed at Sag Harbor and when the forces disbanded he walked home a distance of 91 miles without stopping. He has never applied for a pension.

A druggists' trade paper states that some of the butter color sold to the farmers contains annatto, tumeric, saffron, caustic, potash, lard and alcohol and yet the farmers complain about poisonous oleomargarine. And then they go right out and buy the stuff to mix with their butter.

Said Pasha, the grand vizier of Turkey, now receives an annual salary of $45,000 which is $20,000 more than the prime minister of England receives. Yet Turkey is the poorest and most hopelessly bankrupt state in Europe and the sultan has to borrow from day to day to defray the expenses of his palace.

Lord Rowton, it is said, finds his work of producing the memoirs of Lord Beaconsfield very difficult. The papers are enormous in number and absolutely without order or arrangement. Lord Beaconsfield seems to have kept everything in the shape of letters disposing of them by the easy process of thrusting them into a large box.

A Mr Youmans of Delhi, Delaware county, N Y, publishes the following card: "Within the past sixty days I have paid $2130 for indorsing. Notice is hereby given to the public generally that any man who asks me to indorse his note will do well to have his life insured for the benefit of his family before making such application."

Julian Hawthorne says that his father the novelist wrote a number of tales having witches for their subject matter but they were burned by their author because they embodied no moral truth. They were mere imaginative narratives founded on history and tradition and had not the spiritual balance and proportion of a work of art.

Jack Wright of Salisbury, Md, started to beat his wife but she turned on him and knocked him down. After jumping in a pond and standing in the water up to his neck for an hour he said he always intended to kill himself if conquered by a woman. He went home and hanged himself from a beam, but was cut down in time to save his life.

If Rev G W Briggs of Galveston should prove successful in his effort to abolish the practice of carrying pistols in Texas there ought to be a general disarmament of the pistol bearers all over the country. For Texas has for many years been known as the state where a man didn't need a weapon often but when he did he needed it — ever so much.

The judge at Paz de Ixtacalco, Mexico, when holding an investigation over the death of Feliciano Bosas made the following statement, given verbatim: "On the same day, I, the judge, following my convictions, went to the place where the corpse of Feliciano Bosas lay and standing there I asked who struck him. Having asked that question three times he did not reply because it was good and dead."

The London Truth says that at a royal marriage in England some years ago the bridegroom was a German prince. Only members of the royal family were present at the ceremony with ... two chief officers of the household. When the bridegroom came to repeat the words "With all my goods I thee endow," an indignant exclamation was heard from the royal circle: "Good gracious, the very shoes the fellow wears are not paid for!" It was the old duke of Cambridge who had blurted out this awkward truth in one of his fits of abstraction.

The refusal of Carl Schurz to accept a gift of $100,000 does no surprise me in the least, says an old friend of his to a representative of the Omaha Bee, as he has made it a rule of his life not to accept presents. When he was senator from Missouri some Californians sent his wife a beautiful and costly casket of jewels as a token of their appreciation of the senator's vote on some important measure in which they were interested. He immediately sold his wife to return it as he could not receive any gift while in office and the casket was accordingly returned. I know of other similar instances.

The meanest man we are ashamed to say lives in the First ward. He bought a pound of beef the other day and on the strength of the purchase induced the butcher to give him a generous supply of dog meat. He directed his wife to prepare a part of the dog meat for dinner, save the remainder for the next day and carry the good meat back to the butcher with the explanation that she herself had previously bought at another place all the meat the family could use. The dutiful wife did as she was commanded, and the meanest man got his money back.

Aaron Somers of Bridgeport, Conn, who died a few days ago leaving an estate of $10,000, left a singular will in which he bequeaths his whole estate, personal and real, to his wife as long as she remains a widow. At her death or second marriage the entire property is to be disposed of by his executor to be used at the discretion of the acting selectmen of the town for worthy white widows of said town. Nothing is left to any of his or his wife's connections.

All sorts of disagreeable sayings and opinions of the late Charles Reade are coming to light. He had a contemptuous opinion of Tennyson even before the Laureate dropped into a peerage, and pronounced him a mere poetaster gifted only with the verbal faculty of measuring and stringing musical words. Since Tennyson has heard of it it is believed that he will withdraw from future editions his poem on spring.

John Jones was drawn as juror in the mayor's court at Youngstown, Ohio, and when the officer looked in the directory for his address, found that John Jones was a good deal of a man as he had twenty-seven middle names and lived in twenty seven different places. Consequently they would not serve, and it was only after a three hours tramp that he found a John Jones without a middle name, and he took him in.

On the Anchor line steamer Austral a new plan of serving meals will be introduced. Three hours will be allowed for each meal and by this plan the saloon will never be crowded. An additional saloon will be placed in the after part of the vessel, where chops and steaks will be served between the regular meals. The idea is an excellent one.

How do you like the squash pie, Alfred?" asked a young wife of her husband a few days after marriage. "Well, it is pretty good, but —" "But what do I suppose you started to say that it isn't as good as that which your mother makes?" "Well, yes I did intend to say that, but —" "Well, Alfred, your mother made that very pie and sent it to me."

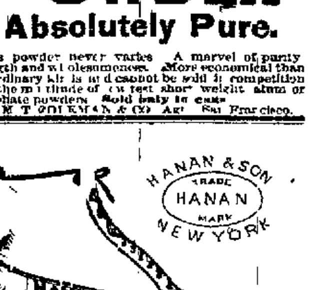

C M Winkleman of Ukiah, Cal, ate the following named quantities of food on a wager. Three beefsteaks, three cans of oysters, two cans of peaches, two cans of sardines, five biscuits, ten crackers, four potatoes, a dish of hominy, a plate of cakes, four cups of coffee, and a glass of water. Time, thirty-two minutes. Before eating the above he had partaken of a hearty supper.

Messrs Fleming Bros

Sirs, — I take this opportunity of informing you of the benefits I have derived from Dr C McLane's Liver Pills. I have for two years past been afflicted with a severe pain over the eyes, accompanied with a nervousness and sense of dizziness, a malady beyond the power and skill of our physicians to relieve and cure caused, as far as I myself could judge, by a diseased state of the liver and stomach. Some of the doctors tried bleeding and various other remedies were tried, but all in vain for the deep-rooted disease still stuck fast. At last I procured a box of your valuable Liver Pills from a druggist here and found, after taking a portion of them, that the disease and painful sensation over the eyes have almost entirely left me. I will lose by advising all those afflicted as I have been, to procure the valuable medicine at once and save much time and pain, with little expense. With sincere gratitude and respect I remain, yours respectfully,

GEO W RUSSELL, Toronto

New York

Mr and Mrs. Williams, No. 248 Seventh street, testify that they have both been suffering with the liver complaint for about five years during which time they have spent a large amount of money and tried many remedies but to no purpose. Finally hearing of Dr C McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., they purchased four boxes which they took according to the directions accompanying each box, and now pronounce themselves perfectly cured of that distressing disease.

A FEW MORE CONJECTURES.

The Edmunds tide flowed in yesterday at Chicago, which, for a day at least, makes the Vermont senator the most prominent of all in Chicago's sea of politics. The day before it was reported that the Edmunds men had found so little encouragement that they cut no figure among the ambitious managers. In each candidate's case there is enough of uncertainty and enough of hope and fear to keep everybody who watches these matters on the qui vive from day to day. Just when we have our minds made up that Mr. Blaine will surely be nominated on the first ballot, some critical reader suggests that the associated press has been favoring him in all the dispatches; then, on top of this insinuation comes the little boom for Edmunds which tends to inspire anew all sorts of speculations. It now seems possible that we may see two combinations, well matched in strength and numbers pitted against each other and holding out stubbornly for several days. They might be made up of the followers of Blaine, Sherman and Logan on the one hand, and Arthur, Edmunds, Harrison and Gresham on the other, with the choice at last to be made as between Sherman and Gresham, in which case Gresham would win. This we mention as a possibility —not as a probability— for through all the varying fortunes of the Blaine forces we cannot help a sort of belief that they are moving irresistibly toward the nomination this time. The uncertain and disorganized condition of the southern delegations, and the silent manner in which several northern states fall back upon the announcement that they will stand by the nominee, means that a day or two of good work among the delegations will bring to the Blaine forces the lacking quantity. While it is true that the other workers have the same field, as shown by the effect of the efforts in behalf of Edmunds yesterday, it is more than probable that the Blaine missionaries are more numerous, quite as active, and a little better up to the work of making converts than any of the others. The fact that we have seen so much good work go for nothing at conventions in years past admits doubts, but by the same reasoning we are bound to admit that the same order of calculations cannot fit two different conventions, with four years of time between them. The man who thinks he knows what will happen in this convention because he has known what happened in the past, is quite as likely to find himself mistaken as the man who thinks he can see his man nominated, and a little more so. We always find on these occasions men who know that a man will never be nominated who holds a seat in the senate. They get over the Garfield instance by saying that he had not taken his seat and was not a senator in the sense that Webster, Clay, Morton and Sherman were, and so adhere to their unreasonable belief. It is the unexpected that happens, as has been so many times said; but in this case there is such a firmly-set belief that the leading candidate before a convention cannot be nominated that Blaine's nomination would be the unexpected to most people.

It helps to mitigate the weariness and strain of waiting and conjecturing to know that the convention will organize to-day and get well at its work to-morrow, and to know also that when its work shall be done the result will come to us like a flash, without any such tormenting delays as we have in counting bushels of scratched tickets here in our county struggle.

THE ELECTION YESTERDAY.

The regular republican nominees on the state and county tickets were all elected yesterday, and an extraordinarily large vote was cast as the result of hard work on both sides and all hands. It was not simply a two-sided affair, so many personal interests led to scratching and making of mixed tickets. The count is a difficult one to make; and, as is always the case where a large vote is cast, another day will be required to ascertain exactly all the majorities. Men whose judgment is good in these matters say the majorities will run from eight to fifteen hundred, though of course some names on the ticket, against which vigorous conspirators were hard at work, suffered to an extent which will leave them but a few hundred margin. Flinn, for judge of the supreme court, and Tanner, for prosecuting attorney of the Fourth judicial district, seem to have been the most persistently followed up by their opponents, with assiduously made bogus tickets, pasters and scratchers, and nothing short of the actual count will show the real extent of this work. The fact that it was a large vote, together with the persistent scratching, will make it a day to be remembered. Some of the candidates who presumed too far upon their ability to go over to the democrats and get what they failed to receive at the hands of a fairly conducted convention, will take a lesson away with them, and the event will serve as a warning against future breaks of this kind.

The New York Tribune, the organ of the capitalists, referring to the failure of the California legislature to grapple with the railroad tax question in that state, says that "the raid upon capital has collapsed, and in the most effectual way, by making itself ridiculous. It is probable that for some time to come the California corporations will be permitted to manage their own business without special molestation, and that demagogues will have to find some other sham issue upon which to rise into power." This cold-blooded attack upon the men who are trying to force the corporations to pay their taxes is sharply rebuked by the Springfield Republican, which says that the Tribune clearly opens itself to the worst sort of demagoguery by raising a cry over the molestation of capital. It bids thus for the support of the "millionaire paupers." That the corporations doing business in California should be properly protected in their property rights is not denied, but the transparent sophistry which damns the people who would force the railroads to pay taxes which a thorough-going business man would not think of shirking, merits a severe rebuke, and no healthy political purpose can be served by the course of the Tribune.

The Houston (Texas) Post thinks it has divined the cause of the silence of the Greystone sphynx. He does not indicate his wish respecting the nomination because he can never "become the candidate of a losing party. With him, to be nominated means to be elected. He must not be defeated lest the outrage of '76 might remain unavenged. But what chances of victory exist in an army whose commanders turn their regiments against each other, whilst the enemy stands by waiting for the decisive moment to commence its work of destruction? In this may lie the secret of Mr. Tilden's silence. He is, physically, nor mentally, decrepit. He has still ten years of vigorous activity. But he cannot, he dare not, become the candidate of a party whose defeat, from present appearances, is a foregone conclusion. Democrats should ponder over this. First union, next Tilden, and with the two victory is assured."

The Eagle City miners are taking the proper steps to bring the camp up to all it is worth by narrowing down the opportunities for holding large claims and not working them. There has been too much of the "one waiting for another" principle, and if the miners can agree on a new deal at this June meeting, it will bring matters to a head very fast. Those having poor claims will be unable to unload them upon unsuspecting capitalists, while those who find good pay will have no trouble in selling if they want to. There is capital enough ready to go in and already going in—but it very properly insists upon thorough prospecting and a good showing.

July may see General Butler at Chicago encamped between the forces of Tilden and Carlisle, holding the balance of power in one hand and a first mortgage on the democratic majorities in three or four states in the other.

PENDING APPOINTMENTS.

The number of people in this country who are "waiting until after the Chicago convention" before doing this or that is very large. President Arthur is one of them, and among the matters postponed until after this great national event are many appointments to office. Very few appointments have been made for the past three months—none, in fact, that could be postponed without detriment to the public service. There are many federal officials whose terms have expired, and who are now holding over, awaiting the action of the chief executive "after the convention." There are three territorial governors who are thus holding over—Governor Murray of Utah, Governor Ordway of Dakota, and Governor Newell of Washington territory, and dozens of territorial officers, as well as several registers of the land office, receivers of the land office, etc. The number of appointments pending is probably larger than ever before at one time, and there is much curiosity as well as some anxiety to see who will come out of the mill when it shall fairly begin to grind. The statement is made that Governor Murray will be reappointed, and he certainly ought to be after the unpleasant time he has had of it in refusing to be wheedled into signing bills and doing other executive acts calculated to make it easy for the Mormons to continue their open defiance of law. There seems to be no one opposed to the reappointment of Gov. Murray, outside of Mormondom with the exception of an eccentric congressman from Kentucky, named John D. White, whose reasons are founded in personal spite. Gov. Ordway will not be reappointed, it is understood, and it may be that, even after the convention milepost has been passed, his case will await the action of the courts in the matter of certain indictments pending against him. Ordway has "enjoyed a deal of misery" since he has been governor of Dakota and has so conducted himself as to awaken the suspicion that he has been rather too greedy to suit the tastes either of the people of the territory or the authorities at Washington. What with the hubbub that was raised about his care on the occasion of locating the capital at Bismarck, and the little charges that grew up around the graver ones, he has found himself in an atmosphere unfavorable to reappointment. In all cases of reappointment or new appointment, President Arthur has acted with deliberation and care; and by leaving all that could be left until after the Chicago convention, he has avoided even the appearance of "setting up things" in his own behalf. What some of the politicians regard as bad management on his part is very likely in most cases attributable to a sense of propriety and a dislike to put anybody in an attitude of extreme political obligation. In several cases it is known that appointees have been determined upon, and doubtless scores of names will be sent to the senate during this month of June. It is probable, at least, that the appointments will be made in time for confirmation by the senate; but, should they be postponed until adjournment, then the waiting will very likely be continued until after election, to save the trouble that might come from changes in office before it can be known that the senate will confirm.

The genius of such men as Cyrus H. McCormick, the great reaper king who recently died in Chicago, is sometimes referred to in slighting and depreciatory terms as being "mechanical" in its nature, and less worthy of admiration and honor than the genius which can produce a beautiful sonnet, or make life-like representations out of blocks of marble, or with various pigments on a piece of canvas. Such, however, is not the case. The genius is not the less akin to the divine, because of its difference of manifestation, and because it appeals more forcibly and directly to other instincts and cravings in the nature of man, than to what we usually call his "sense of beauty." The self-binder reaper has robbed harvesting of nearly all its terrors, and to no one man is there more due of the glory of this achievement than to Cyrus McCormick.

The stock of the Western Union company sold above par after the consolidation with the American Union. A few days ago it was quoted at 53. At this rate the whole property, including the valuable real estate which it owns, was worth $42,400,000, or only $17,950,000 more than the committee estimate to be the probable cost of duplicating the poles, wires and instruments. The Evening Post thinks that the monopoly character of the Western Union company has ceased to exist, and whether congress establishes a postal telegraph or not, the public will soon get their telegraphing done at what the service is fairly worth. The "water" in Western Union may serve to point a moral or adorn a tale, but it will do no further harm to any except those who have invested their money in the water.

The San Francisco correspondent of the New York Star says that the failure of the legislature to place any check upon the insolence and rapacity of the great moneyed corporations of California "will be disastrous to the republicans. Their representatives and their newspapers have taken resolute grounds against the current of public sentiment. All the money of Huntington, Crocker & Co., cannot now give Blaine or Arthur, or any other republican the electoral vote of California. But the managers of that corporation would be equally well suited with a democratic president like Standard Oil Payne, Railroad President Bower, or Railroad Attorney Cleveland, and the plan now is to bring one of the two latter gentlemen upon the party when Mr. Tilden declines on account of ill health."

The Toronto Globe says that the high taxation policy has proved an injury not only to the farmer and the wage earner, but also to many of those for whose especial benefit it was framed. The Globe mentions two manufacturing industries which have recently suspended and says "dullness in trade is said to have been one of the causes of the failures; but this of course must be a mistake. The present benign government promised that there should never again be dullness in trade in Canada, and they have often boasted that they have kept all their promises."

Bavaria has a new marriage law under consideration, which proposes to give the parishes the power to forbid the marriage of couples who do not possess sufficient means to maintain themselves, or who, during the previous three years, have received help from the public funds, or who have not paid their quota of taxes, or regarding whom there is reason to suspect that trouble will result to the household from want of sobriety, economy or love of work.

The Reagan bill and all other attempts to regulate inter-state commerce are shelved by congress notwithstanding the petitions of hundreds of thousands of citizens, and it is announced that the railroads will only concede a national railroad commission with limited powers, and they are now planning to pack this with a majority in their interest and make it subordinate to the trunk line pool.

The Pioneer Press says that the Slater resolution goes to the root of the Northern Pacific land grant matter. It calls for information concerning the examination and acceptance of sections of the road by government commissioners since July 4, 1877, and also as to patents issued for lands in respect to any part of the road completed at that date.

The business men of New York seem to be very anxious to direct the work of the Chicago convention. After all that has recently occurred among them, it would look just as well for the business men of New York to give their whole attention to the business of New York.

Looking back over the list of men who have been vice presidents and unsuccessful candidates for the vice presidency one is struck with the evanescence of popular fame. Unless they succeeded to the presidency by election or because of the death of a president they sank into oblivion so complete that at this day not one man in ten thousand can name them all or any considerable number of them without reference to the record.

The Chicago Tribune intimates that the fruitless debate on the Morrison bill may have removed as much surplus from the treasury as the act itself would have, had it been passed. The printing of the speeches on it is said to have cost $10,000.

CONGRESSIONAL WHIST.

How Four American Statesmen Enjoyed the Fascinating Game.

Letter in Troy, N. Y., Times.

I suppose that the greatest whist quartet in Washington for many years was made up of Garfield, Frye, Randall and "Alec" Stephens. The house committee on rules, of which they were members, met at Long Branch in the summer of 1878. They began playing there, Frye and Stephens against Garfield and Randall. Stephens played a wonderful game. Bolstered up with pillows in his chair, he would sit by the hour without becoming wearied. After the first two or three turns he had an unfailing power of telling where the cards were held. He hated to have a poor partner, for it disturbed his calculations, but with Frye he was always contented and serene. Frye is a strong, impulsive player. When winning, his face beams like a child's, but once behind it becomes a serious affair. Then he is uneasy and restless until a few lucky deals put him ahead again.

Stephens and Frye were in excellent contrast, for the former never apparently took the slightest interest, save as his eyes lighted up occasionally at a remarkably strong suit. Garfield never concealed anything. His plays were always open. Only once did he ever try leading from a "sneak." The look that met him from Stephens was such that it was never known to happen again. Randall in whist, as everywhere else, is cold and calculating. He does not play a scientific game, but a well sustained one, and is a safe partner. You can see that the four are pretty well balanced. But Frye and Stephens won. Frye was fortunate and Stephens skillful. Day after day they kept ahead. Afterward, when the four returned to Washington, the games were kept up. Twice a week regularly the others would go down to Stephens' old-fashioned parlor at the National Hotel, and there play exactly up to midnight. Of course, they had varying fortune, but in the long run the first winners came out ahead. The morning afterward the members would always ask them, if they happened at the capitol, how the games of the night before resulted.

Every winter up to the time Garfield was nominated for the presidency the four kept at it, but then it was broken off, with the intention of resuming after he was once fairly seated in the White House. But he was shot so soon that the plan came to nothing. Stephens wished to keep on and to fill Garfield's place. Harry Smith, the journal clerk of the house, was taken. Very soon afterwards Stephens was elected governor of Georgia, and went away, never to come back. With his departure the series dropped, but he and Frye still lead. Last winter several senators, including Messrs. Hoar, Frye, Sherman, Morrill, Warner, Miller, Aldrich and others, made up a club and played often, but it is not continued. Sherman is one of the best players in the senate. Ben. Harrison is reputed to be, but I never heard of his playing. Senator Bayard likes to take a hand, but he has not the book knowledge that some of his brother senators boast of. But the critical scientists on this subject are not so numerous as they were in the senate a few years ago, when half the members were noted hands. No man ever loved the game more than old Judge Thurman. With his old red bandana on the table to dry his face with, he was alternately in the highest state of exultation or despair. At times Madam Thurman would find it necessary to take a seat by his side with her quiet "Don't grow excited, Allen," to keep her husband in his chair.

SLAVE SELLING IN TANGIER.

Traffic in Human Beings Carried on Openly in the African City.

Sunday, I learned, was the day on which these human chattels were generally disposed of, so on the first Sunday after my arrival in Tangier I went for a walk, and presently found myself in the crowded little market. Just ahead of my conductor was a tall, turbaned Arab, with fine face and long, gray beard, whom I recognized as one of the auctioneers who patrol the High street of Tangier, carrying pieces of calico, horse trappings, knives or other articles on their arms, and crying the price at which they are offered to the public. He was moving stolidly along through the crowd of market people, who were all too busy to spare so much as a glance at him. My guide pointed to him. "Voila!" he cried. "But where is the slave?" I demanded. "Voila, monsieur, Voila!" he repeated, pointing again to the auctioneer, and then I saw walking wearily behind him, pausing when he paused, moving on when he advanced, looking with eyes of pathetic apathy upon the busy throng around her, a girl, a child of 14 years or thereabouts, with uncovered face, clad in a single scanty garment of white cotton. She was black, but not homely, and she had evidently been carefully prepared in the bath for the ordeal of this morning.

There she stood, alone in the crowd, friendless, dejected, travel-worn, hardly to be distinguished in outward appearance from the other girls around her, and yet deprived of the first of all the rights which our human nature claims for itself—a slave without even the commonest of the privileges of humanity. The little girl looked up with a dull curiosity visible on her features when she observed my European dress. Then she looked away with the same old hopeless dejection. I asked her price. "Thirty five dollars" ($?), was the answer. Seven pounds as the price for this little bit of humanity! She had been brought from Soudan, the auctioneer told me. She had been captured there by a slave dealer, who carried her to Mogador and passed her on to another dealer by whom she had been taken to Tangier. She was a pagan, absolutely ignorant, but she was healthy, she was active, she was good looking, she was—but no, my pen refuses to chronicle the list of various qualities as they were glibly enumerated by the salesman. He might have been talking of a horse or a sheep; nay, he would hardly have talked so coarsely of either of those animals as he did of this fellow creature of mine. Presently he turned away disappointed, finding that no bid was forthcoming from me. I followed him at a short distance along the narrow, winding street. The girl was ever treading closely in his footsteps. Suddenly a woman beckoned him to a door. He entered it, still followed by the girl, and when a few minutes afterward he emerged he was alone. Through my conductor I learned that he had sold the girl to the woman of the house for £5.

The Gluttony of Wealth.

"If a man has a hundred thousand dollars," says William H. Vanderbilt, "he can be just as happy as if he were rich."

To the average individual this sounds like satire, but it is none the less true. Mr. Vanderbilt spoke it in sober earnest. Thirty years ago he was a wealthy man who had a hundred thousand dollars. In some localities the amount means wealth to-day; but not here, nor in any large city, nor in half the smaller cities. The desire to accumulate enough to secure comfort and a reasonable amount of luxury has ceased to be rational. The man who is comfortably rich is not satisfied as the man who is poor. He must have more, and when he gets it he must have still more. A million is a comparatively small sum but if he gets ... millions he must have a hundred millions. In order to reach that amount he becomes a slave to business. He trades on his credit that he may be a prince among the moneyed princes. He wears out his life. He gives up all thought and all effort to grand schemes. He takes the money of his friends, the funds of others entrusted to his care, the private property of his wife and her relatives, to swell the capital necessary to the grand result. He is dishonest. He deceives. He lies outright. He uses any and every means to get more, and still more. His ventures are rash, and in nine out of ten cases the end is failure, utter and absolute, for not only himself but for the thousands who have given him their confidence.

This is avarice. It is rapacity. It is soullessness. Your miser starves himself and does no harm to others. Your banker who gambles in great schemes, dresses and lives like a gentleman—like a great many gentlemen put together, and a lot of them very rich—and when he falls he drags down with him thousands of well-to-do individuals, and along with them the business and other legitimate interests which give employment to thousands of laboring men and women. Everybody holds the miser in contempt, but all admire the prince of the great scheme. The latter has stables crowded with horses which he never sees. His different country and city establishments are maintained at a cost of thousands of dollars a week. His family select their attire from a home store which is as large as an average dry goods establishment. His pleasures are paid for in diamonds and his path is strewn with gold. When the miser dies nobody is injured and his grave is soon forgotten; but when this prince falls there is wailing over a wide space of territory, for his extravagance and fall has taken the bread out of many an idler's mouths.

It is best, and perhaps proper enough, that the law must not say to any man, "You have enough; you must be contented with that; you must not only live but let live; you must curb your rapacity and permit others to have their fair share of comfort and luxury." What, however, shall be done to check the passion for great and unneeded wealth which has taken possession of so many men who are otherwise worthy of respect? This passion has uprooted many of the old systems of business. It has destroyed safety and put public and private confidence on the rack. It threatens a breaking up which will do incalculable damage. Most certainly there can be not many cases of the wholesale scoundrelism on the part of men in positions of trust without creating a panic whose melancholy effects may run through several years. The gentleman miser must be checked. The avarice which insists on millions for private use must be stopped. Lorenzo Dow told of an avaricious farmer who, given the whole world, wept because he had not a patch outside to plant potatoes in. Had the farmer been located in Wall street, or at the head of a bank, nobody to-day would find anything extravagant in the character.

When shall there be a return to the old and safe method? When, rather, shall the man who is paid to take care of the money of others cease to become crazed through avarice, through lust for illegitimate power, through the enjoyment that invites everything for himself and his dependents to poverty and starvation for the larger portion of the world? Here, it seems to us, is a fit subject for the prayers of both the pulpit and the pew.—Graphic.

A Cincinnati Opinion.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

The prominence of Justice Field, of the supreme court of the United States, among the men to be considered for the presidency by the democratic national convention is not sectional or spasmodic, but is derived from established preference in all parts of the country. Justice Field is so eminently well equipped for the presidency that he is naturally a conspicuous figure, even at a time when the current of political events may seem to point almost certainly to other men. In 1880 the Enquirer said, what it desires to say now, that his ability, uprightness and firmness make him a bulwark on the bench, and that no better man for chief executive could be elected. He has always been a democrat and his democracy has been illustrated by an honest intention to promote principles rather than by efforts to advance his personal interests. His judicial decisions and his public life generally have marked him as a conservative man with whom the vital interests of the country could be safely trusted. As president he would be a credit to his party and to the whole country. He is in excellent health, and is in especial enjoyment of whatever advantage there may be in belonging to a distinguished family noted for achievements which are prominent in modern progress. He is one of the foremost democrats, and there could hardly be political surroundings reflecting more thoughtful consideration of him as more than a presidential possibility.

The attorney of the Standard Oil Company has been appointed attorney general of the United States, and leaves his office in Washington and goes to Pennsylvania to assist that corporation to evade their taxes due to the commonwealth, while the state ... in Washington.

Skinny Men.—"Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia, Impotence, &c.

S. J. Tilden.

The Rochester Union has discovered that Tilden is not too old to run for president, because he is five years younger than Mr. Gladstone, and four years younger than Senator Oil Can Payne of Ohio. It wishes it to be distinctly understood, "even if he were 12 (instead of 70), Mr. Tilden's age would not be against him." For all that, from the democratic standpoint, it would not be against him if he were 100 or over, but the error of the Union consists in this: That in spite of the psalmist's warnings that "the days of our years are three score and ten," it assumes that the average man reaches that limit with equal powers of mind and body, and that if his head happens to be good his stomach, and lungs, and legs must be good also, and that because here and there a man passes that limit in a fair state of preservation all men, Tilden included, do the same. If the Union would examine the matter more closely it would find that most men reach 70 either with worn bodies and no heads, or worn heads and fresh bodies, and some with no heads or bodies worth mentioning. Some men reach that age with dyspeptic stomachs, rheumatic backs, decaying lungs and kidneys, rickety legs, and a general paralytic condition, which may take them off any day, reckless of their mental condition. There have been several people, notably the old patriarchs, who lived to be several hundred years older than Tilden, Gladstone or Payne, whose records would have been more to the purpose for the Union to have quoted.

Commenting upon some charges of questionable fidelity to financial trusts on the part of the religious philanthropists, Mr. George Sabey and Mr. A. S. Hatch, the New York Sun says: "Of course the vulgar scoffer will say that this only proves the men to be religious impostors. But we do not call them so. We do not question their honesty and sincerity. That they both tried to do good for the sake of doing good we have no doubt. The trouble was that the public assumed that because they were kind hearted they were men of unswerving fidelity to a trust, sound business judgment and firm moral principle. A man's religious impulses may be good and true, and his enthusiasm for humanity deep and genuine, but his moral principle may be at the same time unsound and weak."

NEW TO-DAY.

"POLITICAL EUCHRE" PLAYING CARDS portray the exciting features which will occur at the two approaching national conventions at Chicago, and the presidential election later on. The names of the states, with their electoral votes, and territories are printed on regular size playing cards, and four other cards (making 52 in all) represent the coming republican and democratic nominees, and these cards do the duty of right and left bowers; republican states printed in black, democratic in red. Color of the card turned at the end of the deal makes the trump. Game played the same as euchre. ... Total electoral vote 401, requiring 201 to elect. At end of game the count is electoral votes on all cards you have taken. Regular euchre, whist, casino, etc., may also be played by ... Political Euchre cards, and the electoral votes counted also at close of each game. These double cards are a charming improvement. For sale by book, drug, news dealers, agents, etc. ... throughout the country, awaiting the returns from the conventions. Sample pack, 50 cents; per dozen, $4; per 100, $25.00. L. LUM SMITH, Inventor, 112 Arch street, Phila. 3je

THE STATE ELECTION.

Meager Returns Indicate the Republicans Hold Their Strength.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE NO DOUBT, DEFEATED.

Largely Increased Vote in This City—Quiet Day Throughout the State—The City Count at 1 A. M.

Yesterday's election in this city was what may be termed quiet, but very earnest. The weather was cloudy and cool and there was no rain. More than the customary number of carriages, hacks and wagons were brought into use, and the supply fully equaled the demand. All saloons had their front doors closed, and nearly all were shut up in reality, though several did a small "back-door" trade. Owing to the pleasant weather, the crowds surrounding the polls were larger than usual, and strange to say there was less noise and hurrahing than on simple local elections. Occasionally a shout would be heard for Jordan and Jeffery, but the names of congressional candidates were seldom mentioned above ordinary conversational tones. Probably twenty forms of tickets were used, but the straight republican ticket had a wider circulation than all others. The "unionists" had some tickets with Hermann and Flinn at the head, and some with Myers and Thayer, while several candidates for county offices had tickets for their own benefit with republican and democratic headings. On all sides could be seen men busily engaged in examining and scratching vigorously. Requests for the loan of a pencil were frequent, and the usual apology was "I loaned mine to someone and did not get it back." As the day wore on placards of various kinds ornamented the walls and fences near the polling places one offering a reward for the arrest of illegal voters, another cautioning voters to look out for bogus tickets. A large yellow one cautioned all to be sure and see that they voted their sentiments on the amendment to the constitution, was thousands of tickets are in circulation which will deceive you into voting "yes." There was also a still codger containing a copy of a dispatch from Kate Garnett Wells of Boston, stating that female suffrage was losing ground in Massachusetts. Another document purported to be a circular from the liquor dealers' association here, advising their friends to vote for Thayer. The friends of the different candidates worked energetically all day long, but without wrangling or unnecessary noise.

THE WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT.

This was managed with much more shrewdness than novices are supposed to possess. There was no "whooping things up," the work being done on the tickets and on the outskirts of the crowd at the polls. Early in the day, a great many men voted for the amendment unconsciously. It was printed on the regular republican ticket almost in the center in very small type. As near as it can be reproduced with our type it came in as follows:

For Circuit Judge,
SENECA SMITH.
For Prosecuting Attorney.
A. H. TANNER.
For Constitutional Amendment, Yes.

On other tickets the vote on the amendment was at the foot, with a blank to be filled "yes" or "no." Friends of the movement did not hope to carry the city and were prepared for defeat in the state, though they thought the vote would be much larger than the opponents of the measure expected.

WESTERN.

At Western precinct, which is the largest in the city, voting started early, and was kept up vigorously, all going on smoothly. Everybody seemed to be in good humor and determined to have a ticket fixed to suit him.

There was a great variety, but, as a peddler said, give a man what ticket you will, and he will go off to a corner and scratch it. The number of votes cast was 1284.

SOUTH PORTLAND.

In South Portland precinct the best of order prevailed. No quarreling or noise, but everyone worked away for the favorites, the greatest struggle being apparently for the offices of justice and constable. The number of votes cast was 1305.

NORTH PORTLAND PRECINCT.

The election passed off very quietly at this polling place, voting being steady from morning till night. The total number of votes cast was 209, of which very few were straight tickets, either republican or fusion. Republican leaders were confident of success, although independent candidates were upon the other side were in some cases running considerably ahead of the ticket.

MORRISON PRECINCT.

In this precinct there was quite a rush of business men soon after the polls opened, which kept up till nearly ten o'clock. Then there was a lull until noon. Friends of E. W. Spencer, candidate for justice of the peace, worked hard, and Ben Bybee still harder. The latter thinks he has carried the precinct by about 150 majority. Total vote 1065.

MADISON PRECINCT.

The court house is decidedly the best place in the city, everything considered, for holding an election. All the button-holing is done on the sidewalk, and a voter goes up the steps and into the hall to the ballot box without jostling or interruption. The vote was 835.

COUCH PRECINCT.

This stronghold of the democracy cast in all 1171 votes. Republicans were working hard all day to reduce the majority expected against them, and the democrats were not in the hilarious spirit that usually characterizes their conduct on election day. They had only one flag, and that did not amount to much.

THE VOTE.

Following is the vote of precincts, with comparisons for 1880 and 1882:

PRECINCTS.	1884	1882	1880
South Portland	1305	973	717
Madison	835	707	521
Western	1284	788	1170
Morrison	1065	969	921
Couch	1171	771	681
North Portland	340	709	359
Total	6,550	4826	3950

DEPUTY U. S. MARSHALS.

At the written request of about thirty citizens, under and pursuant to the provisions of section 2021 of the revised statutes of the United States, the U. S. marshal, E. S. Kearney, appointed the following deputy marshals: Morrison precinct, F. R. Wilcox; western, F. M. Hansen; North Portland, H. Y. Jones; Madison, J. H. Hiorde; Couch, Tom Stapleton; South Portland, W. McLean. Section 2021 provides:

"Whenever an election at which representatives or delegates in congress are to be chosen is held in any city or town of 20,000 inhabitants or upward, the marshal for the district in which the city or town is situated shall, on the application in writing, of at least two citizens residing in such city or town, appoint special deputy marshals, whose duty it shall be, when required thereto, to aid and assist the supervisors of election in the verification of any list of persons who may have registered or voted; to attend in each election district or voting precinct at the times and places fixed for the registration of voters, and at all times and places when and where the registration may by law be scrutinized, and the names of registered voters be marked for challenge; and also to attend, at all times for holding elections, the polls in such district or precinct."

ARRESTS.

John Getabini was arrested during the afternoon at South Portland precinct for illegal voting. He is an illiterate Greek, who did not understand the law. It seems that he tried to vote during the forenoon, but on being questioned, said he had taken a homestead in Washington territory, and so was told that his residence was there, and was not allowed to vote. Afterward, being advised by some one, he swore in his vote, and was arrested. He was taken by a deputy United States marshal before Commissioner Lamson, who held him in the sum of $300. When told that he must go to jail, he wanted to go out on Sixth street to tell his wife, who, he said, would cry all night if he did not come home.

John Mack was arrested in Madison precinct for receiving a bribe to vote and one Eddy was also arrested for giving him the money. They were taken by U. S. Marshal Kearney before Commissioner Lamson. Mack was sent to jail for lack of bail. Eddy furnished bail. Both denied their guilt, but one Blake, who made the charge, was certain he saw the money pass. Search of Mack revealed the fact that he had but ten cents in his pocket.

Morris Moorehouse was arrested in Morrison precinct by Policeman Cramer for illegal voting and taken to the city jail.

Frank Baker, a young man born in Portland in 1851 and raised here, was arrested by deputy marshal Hansen for illegal voting, the charge being that he was under age. He was released on his own recognizance.

The belief is that, with the exception of the Greek mentioned above, the arrests were made simply for effect. So far as could be learned there was no foundation of proof and the arrests were made upon complaints of irresponsible men who knew nothing from their own knowledge of the facts.

THE COUNT AT 1 A. M.

It is not likely that the count of this city will be completed until Wednesday morning. Two years ago South Portland precinct, with 1,03 votes, was nearly forty hours in making a return. This year there are 1304 votes, an increase of more than one-third, while the two smallest precincts have nearly as many votes as South Portland had in 1882. However there were not quite so many offices voted for this time, and it is possible THE OREGONIAN may be able to present approximate figures in to-morrow's issue. Following is the count by precincts at one o'clock this morning:

Couch—Two hundred and sixty-one votes counted: Hermann 129 John Myers 132; L Flynn 121, W W Thayer 140; Seneca Smith 130; A H Tanner 95, John M Gearin 167; Joseph Simon 126; J O Carson 132; E D Shattuck 140; E G Hughes 114; J Bourne, Jr, 127, John Kenworthy 125, George L Story 126, William Barnes 133, H S Davenport 121, J E Mayo 123, L Therkelson 121; David Cole, 127, R Weeks 121 Ed Thayer 131 F E Beach 120, John Montag 33, Jacob Hass 149, I Rawles 134; T A Jordan 125, E J Jeffery 76; N Sanders 134, A J Marshall 122; William Showers 133, William Beck 127, J S Newell 123, C W Roberts 130, H W Corbett 283; George Harold 138, J P O Lownsdale 113; O F Paxton, 133; John Rosenberg, 126; W B Mayre 76; John McQuinn, 123; H Cooke, 125; Dr W N Davis, 128; constitutional amendment yes, 59; no, 200; justice of the peace—Bushweller, 129; Malley, 67; Harper, 89.

For the amendment 285; against it, 946.

THE ELECTION IN EAST PORTLAND.

The election in East Portland was prosecuted vigorously, though quietly, no disturbance of any kind occurring. The indications up to a late hour were that the citizens' ticket was generally ahead in East Portland and North East Portland precincts, while in Grant the republicans have a decided advantage. The proposed constitutional amendment will probably be defeated about two to one in all three.

In North East Portland precinct 352 votes were cast, being 76 more than at the general election in 1882; in East Portland precinct 483, being 111 more than in 1882; and in Grant 278 votes were cast, being 67 more than in 1882, the whole showing an increase of 254 votes over those cast at the last general election.

At 1 o'clock 180 votes were counted in North East Portland; in East Portland 153 were counted. At half past 11, at which time the judges adjourned the count till 8 o'clock this morning; and at 12:30 in Grant 102 votes were counted.

There is some dispute as to the legality of adjourning the count in East Portland precinct.

The following figures show the result of the count at the times designated:

THE STATE.

DOUGLAS COUNTY.

DRAIN, June 2.—10:30 P. M.—[Special.]—Whole number of votes cast, 204; number of votes counted, 130. Hermann 89, Myers 59; for the amendment 51, against the amendment 77; senators, republican 81, democratic 55 representatives, republican 94, democrats, 59.

ROSEBURG, Or., June 3, 1 A. M.—[Special.]—Four hundred and seventy-seven votes were cast and nearly one half counted. Republican legislators are ahead except Owens, who is gaining a little. Hermann will get at least 200 in this precinct and 400 in the county. Thayer is a little ahead of his ticket. The amendment gets about one-fourth the votes. The republicans have undoubtedly carried the county on nearly everything.

OAKLAND, Or., June 2.—11:30 P. M.—One hundred and eighty-three votes counted; Hermann, 86; Myers, 90; Thayer, 95; Flinn, 87 amendment, yes, 17; no, 119.

LANE COUNTY.

JUNCTION, June 2—10:30 P. M—[Special]—Myers 75, Hermann 60; Thayer 81, Flinn 56; Watson 61, Lambton 71; senators, Coleman 62, Zumwalt 61; democratic legislative ticket, Bilyeu 64, Hayes 70, Veatch 61, Burton 57; republican, McClung 59, Scott 58, Dick 6., Harper 59; amendment, yes 24, no 83; two-thirds of vote counted.

WASHINGTON COUNTY.

HILLSBORO, June 2—[Special.]—Hermann shows 55 to 15 on the tally sheets. Bennett and Taylor are even. Here will be elected.

CORNELIUS, June 3.—[Special.]—For congress, Hermann 54, Myers 103; for supreme judge, Flinn 5., Thayer 105, district judge, Taylor 59 Bennett 92; district attorney, McBride 90 Dillard 97; state senators, Haro 45, Fence 110; representatives, Prosser 51, Jolly 53, Smith 59, Purdin 101, Johnston 101, Gaskell 95; for the amendment 43, against the amendment 87.

HILLSBORO, June 3—1 A. M.—[Special.]—Hillsboro precinct gives the following majorities: Hermann 47, Flinn 61, Bennett 31, McBride 38, Haro 13, against the amendment 60.

West Buttes gives as majorities: Hermann 2, Thayer 6, Bennett 15, Dillard 4, Bruce 16.

LINN COUNTY.

ALBANY, June 2.—[Special.]—The election to-day passed very quietly there being 97 votes less cast this year in East and West Albany precincts than at the regular election two years ago. The candidates for the supreme bench and prosecuting attorney were badly scratched. The democrats claim that Chamberlain will carry this county by 100 majority. The supposition is that Thayer is as badly scratched as Flinn in this precinct.

HARRISBURG June 2—10:30 P. M.—[Special]—Myers 80 ahead, Thayer 75 ahead, against woman suffrage 60 ahead, legislature from 60 to 70 democrat; ticket are so badly scratched that a close estimate is impossible.

SHEDDS, June 3.—Hermann 84, Myers 63, Flinn 71 Thayer 60, Wolverton 84, Chamberlain 64; senator Lever 80, Wes herford 62; representatives, Hume 81, Pearl 84, Cunningham 70, Irvine 85, Jones 80, Looney 80, Cyrus 60, Montaye 60, Shelton 60, Petry 60, Black 51, Watts 79; amendment, yes 47, no 72.

COTTAGE GROVE, via Latham, Or., June 2.—[Special.]—Hermann 84, Myers 62, Flinn 82 Thayer 61, Watson 60, Hamilton 83, State senator—Zumwalt (Rep.) 86, Coleman (Dem.) 57. Representatives, republicans, McClung 80, Dick 89, Scott 68, Harpole 58; democratic, Veatch 70, Bilyeu 67, Burton 67, Hays 63. Two hundred and forty-eight votes were cast.

TAMHILL COUNTY.

SHERIDAN, June 2.—Special.—Count at 10:30 P. M.—Myers 60; Hermann 74; Thayer 67, Flinn 71; Chamberlin 68, Wolverton 70; senators, Burch 67, Braley 67, Laughlin 69, Warren 70; representatives, Nelson 67, Coleman 71, Daniels 67, Spencer 74, Woodward 70, Sanders 65; amendment, yes 17, no 114.

Ballston Precinct—Myers 44, Hermann 54; Thayer 41, Flinn 64; Chamberlin 44, Wolverton 58; senators, Burch 50, Braley 41, Laughlin 49, Warren 48; representatives, Nelson 47, Coleman 45, Daniels 24; republican, Spencer 41, Woodward 51. Sanders 50; amendment, yes 27, no 68. All counted.

BENTON COUNTY.

CORVALLIS, June 2, 11:45 P. M.—[Special.]—Elk precinct—Hermann 12, Myers 22, Flinn 33, Thayer 22, Watson 30, Hamilton 20. Joint senator Lee 29, Thompson 20; representatives, republican, Henkle 33, Keady 34, Connor 29; democrats, Crawford 17, Parker 13, Skipton 18; amendment, for, 23, against, 20.

Summit precinct—Hermann 70, Myers 57, Flinn 53, Thayer 66, Watson 43, Hamilton 61. Joint senator, Lee 37, Thompson 43, representatives, republican, Henkle 30, Keady 51, Connor 39; democratic, Crawford 23, Parker 41, Skipton 40; amendment, for, 23, against, 69. Returns complete in the above precincts.

CORVALLIS, June 3—[Special.]—Corvallis precinct, total vote 458. Count at 1 A. M.: Hermann 87, Myers 114; Flinn 86, Thayer 114; Watson 77, Hamilton 106; joint senator, Lee 83, Thompson 100; representatives, Keady 133, Henkle 80, Connor 83, Crawford 77, Skipton 95, Parker 81; for amendment 42, against 137.

CLACKAMAS.

OSWEGO, June 2.—[By Telephone.]—The vote of this precinct is as follows: Hermann 75, Myers 38; Flinn 78, Thayer 31; Taylor, circuit judge, 78; Bennett 36; McBride, district attorney, 78, Dillard 36; state senator, republican—Williams 77, Vaughn 35; republican legislative ticket 77, democratic 37; clerk, Whitlock 90, Kelly 33; sheriff, Knight 69, opponent, 43; for woman's suffrage 12, against the amendment 91.

NEW ERA, June 2.—Whole number of votes cast up to 5 P. M. 66; republicans 37, democrats 29; for constitutional amendment 20, very little scratching.

OREGON CITY, June 2.—[Midnight.]—Number of votes cast, 401; number counted up to 11:55 P. M., 200. For Myers, 112, Hermann, 78.

POLK COUNTY.

McCOY, June 2.—[Special.]—Bethel precinct—Congress, Hermann 56, Myers 52; supreme judge, Flinn 57, Thayer 48; joint senators, Lee 57, Thompson 51; woman suffrage, for, 27, against, 68; state senator, Allen 51, Walker 50; representatives, Griggs 56, Gibson 58, Stump 57, Craven 50, Kuykendall 48, Folkerson 49.

INDEPENDENCE, June 2.—[Special.]—Count at 10:30 P. M.—Whole number of votes cast, 218. Myers 73, Hermann 63, Thayer 73, Flinn 69; for amendment, yes 24, against 97. For senator, Allen, republican, 63; Walker, democratic, 61; representatives, republican, Griggs 57, Gibson 62, Stump 69; democratic, Craven 70, Kuykendall 58, Folkerson 59.

INDEPENDENCE, June 2.—[Special]—Independence precinct, official: Hermann 113, Myers 105; Flinn 112, Thayer 106; amendment, yes 37, no 141, blank 24; joint senator, Lee 103, Thompson 107; state senator, Allen 103, Walker 91; legislature, republicans, Stump 96, Gibson 103, Griggs 90; democratic, Craven 106, Kuykendall 89, Burgess 90; prosecuting attorney, Wolverton 81, Chamberlain, democrat, 135; sheriff, Holman 84, Groves 106; clerk, Shelley 104, Sears 89. Monmouth precinct's majority against the amendment is 60.

MARION COUNTY.

ASTORIA, June 2.—[Special.]—Twelve hundred and eighty-nine votes were polled in Astoria and Upper Astoria, against 880 last year. Recently the county commissioners divided Astoria proper into two voting precincts, one in Shively's and the other in Olney's, Astoria. The largely increased vote shows it was necessary. Everything was quietly conducted in Shively's, but in Olney's precinct, which includes our "Barbary coast," much excitement prevailed, and several fights occurred, but without disastrous results. It is impossible to say before the ballots are counted who are the successful candidates for the principal local offices, as each candidate had a host of personal friends who would ignore party questions. Clatsop will doubtless give Hermann, Flinn and Taylor handsome majorities. Gray is expected to beat Lehnebwebor for joint representative, but the vote will be close. County officers were scratched considerably, and will be divided between both parties.

MARION COUNTY.

SALEM, June 3—12:10 A. M.—[Special.]—The count will not be completed before morning. Present figures indicate the election of the entire republican ticket, with a majority of at least 500 for Hermann and Flinn. Wolverton is running a trifle behind his ticket. Flinn is running along very even. The amendment is beaten by an overwhelming majority.

MARION, June 2.—[Special.]—Democratic candidates, Myers 28, Thayer 21, Chamberlain 22, Davidson 17, Taylor 21, Esson 18, Miller 27, Savage 21, Warren 19. Amendment No, 29; yes, 26. Republican candidates, Hermann 24, Flinn 26, Wolverton 24, Cusick 26, Hun 16, Downing 26, Coolidge 23, Gilbert 25, Bleakney 22.

WOODBURN, June 2—[Special]—Total vote: Hermann 70, Myers 45; Flinn 70, Thayer 39; legislature, Cusick 67, M. A. Flinn 90, Downing 61, Coolidge 64, Gilbert 74, Bleakney 60, Davidson 45, Taylor 40, Sears 38, Miller 36, Savage 31, Warren 33; suffrage amendment, yes 41, noes 85.

AUMONA, Or., June 2—[Special.]—Hermann 71, Myers 10; Flinn 71, Thayer 9; amendment, yes 4, no 75.

GETTING EVEN WITH THE FAMILY.

"I cannot endure the woman," said a lady to her husband the other morning, referring to a neighbor.

"Sh-sh."

"Well, I can't help expressing myself. She is a thorough vixen."

"Sh, don't say a word. I hate her, husband, and I'll fix 'em both."

"What are you going to do?" asked his wife.

"I am going to buy their 10-year-old kid the biggest and most discordant drum I can find the day we move out of the neighborhood."

POP.

Kate Castleton's Opening Night Draws a Full House—Plenty of Fun Presented.

For weeks those who delight in light comedy have looked forward to the Kate Castleton season, and the announcement of the "Bonnie Kate's" opening night witnessed a rush for seats. The theater last night was filled from orchestra to gallery doors with an audience that went to be amused and to see Kate Castleton as she has grown to be since leaving us with the "Fun on the Bristol" troupe. They saw the same engaging face and jaunty step, greatly improved by both talent and opportunity. Her "For Goodness' Sake Don't Say I Told You" has given her wide reputation. As now given the character is more by creation, but is imitated by many others probably as pleasing. Being at the head of the troupe she is the center of attraction, and around her is gathered an engaging array of individual talent. "Pop" is a comedy of small proportions, and with a plot that is no plot. But there must be something to introduce specialties, hence there is a long lost daughter found. As a spoiled—or rather idolized—beauty Kate Castleton does well enough, though her life is short. She presents some original positions that are striking if not effective. The Misses Stombler and Hastings are possessed of pleasant voices, the former's peculiar warble being quite taking. The Hanley sisters are also deserving of notice, Miss Emma singing character songs in good style but reciting indifferently the time worn "Battery B." The Misses Fisch and Hall fill the minor feminine characters. As a dramatic author in his own mind and a stage manager for a charity entertainment Harry Phillips comes in for continued applause. Mr. Donnelly has a small part in the plot, but made a hit as a female singer. Richard Gorman presents some amusing Dutch situations and sketches; also doing the heathen Chinee business in excellent style. Stuart Harold comes to the front only in Romeo, to Miss Castleton's Juliet. Burnham has little to do, but appears to be capable of more. All the costumes worn are most striking and greatly add to the general entertainment. The four little dudes made a hit in San Francisco, and will no doubt do the same here. They are refreshingly original and, as advertised, "just daisy." The audience would be better pleased if the songs were not a little more plain to the ear. The Romeo and Juliet and the Pygmalion and Galatea scenes are original with the party, but have been presented here by the "Whims" company, which pirated them. The surprise party closes with a grand potpourri of selections from the latest operas. "Pop" is certain to draw full houses in spite of the fact that the Stratogists have only just left us and we have enjoyed a vast amount of fun of late. Gorman's Dutch specialties are replete with fun of the minstrel order. It was suggested that he could well omit about two of his gallery funny ones if he wants to please audiences that pay for refined fun. Aside from this the party are strikingly free from objectionable comedy, and their fun is of a high order. The little quaker lady has a store of verses and will present many local hits during the week. There is much that is original throughout the comedy, and that already presented here is given in better style than we have been accustomed to see.

HIGH WATER STATISTICS.

Following out a custom established in 1877, THE OREGONIAN this morning presents the table printed below showing the stage of water in the Willamette river at this place since the memorable high water of 1876:

The year 1878 is not given because it was almost an exact repetition of 1877, the greatest variation between respective days in June being only eleven inches and the highest water recorded being 14.7 feet. *The highest water in 1880 was July 1 and 2, 27.8 feet.

The river yesterday marked 18.2 feet, a fall of two-tenths in twenty-four hours.

Gray's Harbor.

Go slow! To speculators and settlers we say, keep cool. Don't get excited. There are several other towns springing up in the Chehalis. Don't be too fast about buying Cosmopolis lots. The Chehalis valley is easy of access, good passenger boats traversing the river daily. If after careful investigation, you conclude that Cosmopolis is the favored spot and better located than the other points, why then "pitch in," but don't go it blind.

Cosmopolis, the new city near the mouth of the Chehalis river, Gray's harbor, seems to be receiving the lion's share of attention just now.

The new hotel at Cosmopolis is nearly completed. It is a beautiful structure and much the finest in southwestern Washington, if not the best in the entire territory. It commands a fine view of the beautiful Chehalis river, and is sure to become a favorite resort for tourists and travelers.

DECISION ON TAX DEED.

Circuit Court, District of Oregon.

Mary Kelly vs. George Herrall, executor of Jacob Fisher. No. 9?7. Action to recover possession of real property.

(1.) TAX DEED—EFFECT OF AS EVIDENCE. Notwithstanding the act of 1865 (Or. laws, § 90), making a tax deed conclusive evidence of the regularity and validity of the prior proceedings, in an action by the owner of the property to recover the possession from the grantee in such deed or his assignee, it may be shown that no warrant issued for the collection of the tax levied on the property or that there was no sale thereon on that account.

(2.) WARRANT FOR THE COLLECTION OF A DELINQUENT TAX. A warrant for the collection of a delinquent tax was received by the sheriff on May 5th, and on Friday, July 6th, 62 days thereafter, he sold the same: Held, That that the warrant was dead and the sale void; and that the sale could not be made after the return day of the writ, which was either the first Monday in July, or the sixtieth day after its receipt by the sheriff, and possibly 30 days in addition in case a prior appointed sale was postponed to some day within that period for sufficient cause with the approval of the county court.

(3) ASSESSMENT ROLL, DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY THEREIN. In 1876 there was only one place in Multnomah county laid out and recorded as the "Portland Homestead," containing a lot 3 in block B, of which Mary Kelly was the owner; the assessor entered the same on the assessment roll for taxation in her name and described it as "lot 3 in block B, Port. Homstd. Ass'n," and valued it for taxation at $100; Held, that the description was sufficiently certain.

(4) REVENUE LAWS, CONSTRUCTION OF. Laws for raising revenue for the support of the state are remedial in their character, and proceedings taken under them for the purpose of ascertaining the amount a citizen ought to contribute for the common weal ought not to be considered as taken in invitum, or hostile to his or his interests, but rather as proceedings in his behalf, in which it is his duty to co-operate with the state, so as to enable it to reach a correct and just result.

DEADY J.

This action is brought by the plaintiff, a citizen of the state of California, to recover the possession of lot 3 in block B, in Portland Homestead.

It was commenced against Jacob Fisher, a citizen of Oregon. After the cause was at issue Fisher died, and on February 22, 1884 his death was suggested to the court and supported by the affidavit of the plaintiff's attorney, whereupon the action on motion of the latter, was continued against the executor of the deceased, George Herall.

This is according to the practice prescribed in such cases by the Or. code of civil procedure (§37); but it is doubtful if the personal representative of a deceased defendant can be made a party to an action in this court in place of the latter on the application of the plaintiff, otherwise than by a scire facias, issued "twenty days beforehand," as provided in §955 of the R. S.

But as the executor has since voluntarily appeared in the action, and by his counsel stipulated that the cause may be tried by the court without a jury upon the facts therein stated, in addition to those admitted by the pleadings, I suppose he is properly before the court, as the defendant in the case, and that judgment may be given for or against him with the same effect as if he had been brought into the case by scire facias. See Hatch v. Eustis, 1 Gal., 160; Barker v. Ladd, 3 Saw., 44.

It appears from the admissions in the pleadings and the stipulations of the parties that in 1876, and prior thereto, the plaintiff was the owner in fee of lot 3 in block B in Portland Homestead, in the county of Multnomah and state of Oregon, according to the recorded plat thereof, and that in said year the assessor of said county entered on the assessment roll thereof for taxation, in the name and as the property of the plaintiff, "lot 3 in block B, Port. Homstd Ass.," and valued the same thereat, for such purpose, at $100, upon which valuation a tax was afterwards levied by the proper county court for state, county and school purposes of $1 50.

The tax so levied upon said property not being paid or collected as provided by law, the same was returned by the sheriff before the first Monday in April, 1877, as delinquent; and thereafter entered by the county clerk on the list of unpaid taxes and "charged" to Mary Kelly, together with a description of the property, as lot 3 in block B in "P. H. Assn." which list was, on May 5, 1877, delivered to the sheriff, with a warrant attached thereto, dated May 3 1877, "for the collection of the taxes therein mentioned and described." who, not being able to find any personal property belonging to the "delinquent," "thereupon" duly levied on the real property described in said list as follows: "Kelly, Mary, Portland H. Assn, lot 3 block B, tax $1 05," and duly advertised the same for sale at the court house door on July 6, 1877, by the description last aforesaid, and then and there sold the same, subject to redemption, to said Fisher, he being the highest bidder therefor, for the amount of said tax—$1 50—and $2 90 costs—in all $4 40; and gave him a certificate thereof accordingly.

On July 12, 1879, the time for redemption having expired without any application being made to redeem the property, the sheriff executed a deed to the purchaser in pursuance of said sale for the following described property: "Lot 3 in block B in the Portland Homestead Association, in Multnomah county, State of Oregon," who thereupon went into possession of the lot in controversy and occupied the same until his death, in said county, on January 5, 1884, leaving a will in which George Harrall was named as executor and to whom letters testamentary were afterwards issued thereon by the proper county court.

It also appears from said stipulation "that if evidence is admissible to show the meaning of the abbreviation 'Port. Homstd. Ass.,' as it appears in said assessment roll, it means 'Portland Homestead Association.'"

Formerly a party claiming under a tax deed was held to strict proof of the legality and regularity of every step in the prior proceeding, from the listing of the property down to and including the sale. The application of the conservative maxim—Omnia rite presumuntur—was not allowed; and it was assumed that nothing was done, or rightly done, until the contrary was shown. Owing, probably, to the great disparity between the real value of the property, in many cases, as in this, and the amount paid for it by the purchaser at the tax sale, the courts were astute to find some flaw in the proceeding, on account of which they might hold the deed invalid, and thus prevent what might be considered as a forfeiture of the property.

In this state of the law, taken in connection with the fact that the process of the assessment and collection of taxes is generally in the hands of inexperienced and untrained persons, selected by popular election for short periods, it is not surprising that the sale of property for the non-payment of taxes has usually been regarded as a mere admonitory formality which, at most, could only involve the delinquent owner in a "law suit" with the purchaser, in which the latter was quite sure to come out second best.

In Blackwell on Tax Titles, 72, it is said that out of 1000 such titles that had found their way into the appellate courts (1869), not twenty of them had proved "legal and regular" according to this severe test.

The duty of the owner to return his property for taxation, and to assist and co-operate with the state in ascertaining the exact amount that he ought to contribute to the public revenue, seems to have been overlooked, and the proceeding regarded and treated as a hostile if not a predatory one, on the part of the state against the citizen, in which the latter was justifiable in getting off as cheaply as possible or lying by and allowing his property to be sold for taxes, and then avoiding the effect of the sale and escaping the payment of the tax altogether, by evidence of the title of the purchaser and the regularity of all the prior proceedings.

In Pillow vs. Roberts, 13 How. 473, Mr. Justice Grier in considering an Arkansas statute of this character, says: "The evil plainly intended to be remedied by this section [36th] of the act was the extreme difficulty and almost impossibility of proving that all the very numerous directions of the revenue act were fully complied with antecedent to the sale and conveyance by the collector. Experience has shown that when such conditions were enforced a purchaser of tax sales, who had paid his money to the government and expended his labor on the faith of such titles in improving the land, usually became the victim of his own credulity, and was evicted by the recusant owner or some shrewd speculator. The power of the legislature to make the deed of a public officer prima facie evidence of the regularity of the previous proceedings cannot be doubted. And the owner who neglects or refuses to pay his taxes or redeem his land has no right to complain of its injustice. If he had paid his taxes or redeemed his land he is, no doubt, at liberty to prove it, and thus annul the sale. If he has not, he has no right to complain if he suffers the legal consequence of his own neglect."

But this change in the law only shifted the burden of proof on to the party who contested the title of the purchaser, and any defect or irregularity in the preceding could still easily be shown by such contestant from the public records or writings. On this account the statute did not turn to the protection of the purchaser that was expected and therefore some of the states, for instance, Iowa and Oregon, have gone farther in that direction and declared, in effect, that a tax deed shall be conclusive evidence of the title of the purchaser and the regularity of the prior proceedings, except in certain specified and essential particulars, concerning which it may still be controverted by evidence to the contrary and overthrown.

But Judge Cooley in considering this subject (C. on Taxation, 356) says that the authority of the legislature to pass such statutes has this plain limit—"it cannot deprive one of his property by making his adversary's claim to it whatever that claim may be, conclusive of its own validity. It cannot, therefore, make the tax deed conclusive evidence of the holder's title to the land." See also Cooley's Con. Lim. 368. And in McCready v. Sexton, 29 Iowa 356, the court held that a statute of that state making a tax deed conclusive evidence that all the prerequisites necessary to a valid sale, so as to vest the title in the purchaser, had been done, is unconstitutional, so far as the essential prerequisites to the exercise of the taxing power is concerned, and that the following are of that character: The listing and assessing of the property; the levy of the tax thereon; the warrant to sell the same; and a sale thereon. This ruling has been adhered to in subsequent cases and the result is that the statute is allowed to be only prima facie evidence that these essential prerequisites have been done, but as to all other steps in the proceeding, and even the time and manner of doing these, including the notice used, the deed is held to be conclusive. Martin v. Cole 38 Iowa, 141.

The act of December 18, 1865, (Or. Laws, 767, § 90), provides that if land sold for taxes is not redeemed within two years from the date of the certificate of sale, the purchaser or his assigns shall receive a deed therefor from the sheriff, containing a description of the property sold, the amount bid, the year in which the tax was levied, a statement that the tax was unpaid at the time of the sale, and that no redemption has since been made, which deed shall operate to convey a "legal and equitable title" "in fee simple to the grantee" therein; and upon the delivery thereof "all the proceedings required or directed by law in relation to the levy, assessment and collection of the taxes and the sale of the property shall be presumed regular and had and done in accordance with law; and such deed shall be prima facie evidence of title in the grantee, and such presumption and such prima facie shall not be disputed or avoided, except by proof of either: (1) Fraud in the assessment or collection of the tax; (2) Payment of the tax before sale or redemption after the sale; (3) That the payment or redemption was prevented by the fraud of the purchaser; and (4) That the property was sold for taxes for which the owner of the property was not liable, and that no part of the tax was levied or assessed upon the property sold."

The plaintiff contends that this tax deed is void for several reasons, most of which are, in effect, that the property is not sufficiently described in the assessment roll and the subsequent proceedings.

It is not claimed that there was any fraud in the assessment or collection of the tax, or that it was paid before the sale or the property redeemed therefrom, or that such payment or redemption was prevented by the fraud of the purchaser, or that lot 3 in block B in Portland homestead was not liable to assessment and taxation in 1876 as the property of the plaintiff.

The only ground, then, according to this act, upon which the validity of this deed can be attacked for defects in the prior proceedings, not apparent upon the face of it, is that mentioned in the last clause of subdivision 4 of § 90 aforesaid—"that no part of the tax was levied or assessed upon the property sold."

The terms "levied or assessed" are here used as convertible ones. But, strictly speaking, taxes are "levied," not assessed. Under the law of this state the assessment, which consists of the listing and valuation of the property, is made by the assessor (Or. Laws, 754, § 20; Rap. & Law., Dic., Assessment), and upon this valuation the taxes are imposed or levied by the county court and extended on the roll by its clerk. Or. Laws, 760-61.

The assessment of land is made by entering in the appropriate column in the assessment roll the name of the owner and a description of the property with its valuation, which, in case of a lot or block situated in any city, village or town, "a plat of which is recorded, may consist of the number of such lot and block with the name of the "village or town in which the same is situated." Or. Laws, 764 §§ 29, 30.

In this case the assessment roll contains the name of the owner of the property in question, the number of the lot and block, the valuation of the same and the amount of the tax levied thereon, and the only question is whether the place or village in which it is situated ("Portland Homestead") is sufficiently indicated by the abbreviation 'Port. Homstd. Ass.'"

This statute has not been construed by the supreme court of the state. It does not go as far as the Iowa act, by any means, but still it does undertake among other things, to make the tax deed conclusive evidence of a warrant for the sale of the property and a sale thereon, two things which the Iowa court holds are essential to the validity of the tax deed, and of which it can only be made prima facie evidence. For the purposes of this case it will be assumed that the Oregon statute should be limited and restrained in its operation according to the rule laid down in the Iowa court.

Upon this construction of the statute the deed must be considered as only prima facie evidence that the prior proceedings were duly had and done at least in these four particulars, namely: (1) the assessment of the property, (2) the levy of the tax thereon, (3) the issue of a warrant for the non-payment of the same, and (4) the sale of the property thereon. As to these facts, the deed is not conclusive, and the contrary may be shown, and its invalidity thereby established.

By the fourteenth amendment, the state is forbidden "to deprive any person of property without due process of law." And to make a tax deed conclusive evidence that the property which it purports to convey was assessed for taxation; that a tax was levied thereon, and the same was sold upon a warrant issued for that purpose for the non-payment of such tax, when in fact there was neither an assessment, levy, warrant nor sale, or only any three of them, is in my judgment such deprivation. If it is not, then a simple act of the legislature, declaring that the farm of A is henceforth the dently an abbreviation of "Association," and its insertion in the description apparently arose from the fact that the name of the proprietor of the property includes the name of the Homestead and is so far identical with it. The property could not be situated in the Association—the collection of persons—or legal entity that laid out and named the town. The manifest falsity of this particular in the description, and the sufficiency of that which remains to indicate the location of the lot, brings the case within the operation of the maxim—Falsa demonstratio non nocet—a mere false description does not make an instrument inoperative. Brooms Leg. Max., 629; see also 1 Green, Ev., § 301.

My conclusion upon this point is that the proof furnished by the sheriff's deed of the assessment of the property and the levy of the tax thereon is not overcome by the introduction of the assessment roll. On the contrary, both these facts are sufficiently shown by the entries thereon. See Mecklem v. Blake, 19 Wis., 419.

The legality of the sale is questioned by the plaintiff on the ground that it was not made during the life of the warrant, but after the return day thereof.

By § 82 (Or. Laws, 766) a warrant for the collection of a delinquent tax is made equivalent to an execution, except as in chapter 57 otherwise provided. By § 275 of the Code of C. P., an execution against property is made returnable within sixty days after its receipt by the sheriff; but by § 290 of the same it is provided that the sheriff may, "for want of purchasers or other sufficient cause," postpone a sale with the consent of the plaintiff in the execution, "not exceeding thirty days beyond the day at which the writ is made returnable."

It appears from the sheriff's return in this case that he received the warrant on May 5 and made the sale thereon 62 days thereafter, on July 6. The return does not state distinctly when the levy was made, but it is clear that it was made during the life of the warrant, for it appears that upon the receipt of the writ the officer levied upon the property and published a notice of the sale thereof for four weeks before the same took place.

At common law, when an officer has entered upon the execution of a writ, as by making a levy therewith, before the return day thereof, he may sell the property thus levied on at any time thereafter. Wheaton v. Sexton, 4 Whea., 504; Remington v. Linthicum, 14 Pet., 92; Freeman on Ex., § 106. But it seems this power is limited in this state by said § 290, the effect of which is, in my judgment, to require a sale on execution to be made within the life of the writ, or at most within 30 days after the return day thereof. And this postponement for 30 days can only be made with the consent of the plaintiff indorsed on the writ and for a cause therein stated. Whether this provision concerning the postponement of a sale and requiring the consent of the plaintiff to authorize it, is applicable to a warrant for the collection of a delinquent tax may be doubted. But, if it is, the county as represented by the county court ought to be considered the plaintiff in the writ and give the consent to the postponement. But such postponement can only take place after a day appointed for the sale within the life of the writ and for a cause then ascertained to exist by the officer, which fact ought to be stated in his return. In this case the return does not show that the case was postponed to July 6, but that it was appointed and advertised for that day in the first instance; so that there is no doubt that the sale was made after the life of the warrant and not upon an adjournment from an earlier day within such life, as required by said § 290 in case of an execution.

And by § 81 (Or. laws, 766) it is provided that within ten days after the first Monday in April the county clerk shall make and deliver to the sheriff "a true and correct list of the taxes returned unpaid, and a correct description of the land or town lots, if the same can be made and to whom such taxes are charged, * * * with a writ attached thereto," commanding him to collect the same out of the goods and chattels of the delinquent; and if none be found, then to levy "upon the real property, as set forth in said tax list," and to pay over all moneys so collected by the first Monday in July thereafter. In my judgment, there is in this provision a necessary implication that the warrant for the collection of the tax is not only returnable by the first Monday in July, with the "moneys" made thereon, but that it must be executed before that time by the sale, if need be, of the property mentioned therein or an offer to sell the same at a time and place appointed for that purpose.

By the return in this case it appears that the day of sale—July 6—was a Friday; from which it is shown that the first Monday in July of that year occurred on the second of the month, and that the sale took place four days after the time prescribed for that purpose by this statute. So that, whether this warrant, as to the time within which a sale could be made in pursuance of a levy under it, is to be considered an execution and subject to said § 290 of the code, or controlled by said § 81 of the tax law, it appears that the sale of this property was made after the time limited by law therefor.

It being assumed, as has been said, that the act of 1865 must be construed so as to allow the tax deed to be overcome by showing that there was no sale of the premises the question arises whether a sale upon a warrant after the time within which it is required to be made is a valid sale. If a sale is actually made upon or in pursuance of the authority of a lawful warrant no mere irregularity in the manner and time of making such sale can be shown to avoid the deed. On the contrary, it is conclusive evidence of the regularity of the sale in all such respects. For instance, it cannot be shown that the sale was without or upon an insufficient notice, or that it was made elsewhere than at the court house door or otherwise than between the hours of 10 and 4 o'clock in the daytime, as prescribed by § 93 (Or laws, 768). But where the sale is made without any authority in the officer for that purpose, as where there is no warrant for the collection of the tax, the fact may be shown to avoid the deed. And taking it for granted that the authority to sell under the warrant of May 3, was gone before July 6, then the sale in this case was essentially illegal and the deed made in pursuance thereof void.

There is also a question made in the case as to whether there ever was a warrant issued to collect a delinquent tax "charged" to Mary Kelly and levied upon this "town lot." The warrant is "attached" to the "list" of "unpaid" taxes, and duly authorizes the collection of a tax levied on "the lands or town lots" described therein. In the delinquent roll the only property which appears to have been assessed to Mary Kelly is lot 3 in block B in "P. H. Assn." With our present knowledge of the subject it may be quite apparent that the letters "P. H." were intended to signify "Portland Homestead," and doubtless they were so intended by the officer who wrote them. But reading them in the light of the proceeding alone, it is just as reasonable to infer that they stand for Pleasant, Prospect or Plymouth Home or Hollow.

In any weight is to be given in the direction contained in § 81 aforesaid, to the effect that the list of unpaid taxes shall contain a "correct description" of the property on which they are levied, it seems that the place in which a own lot is situated ought to be more certainly designated than by the initial letter of its name. And in this connection consideration ought to be given to § 33 (Or. Laws, 755) in which it is declared that—"It shall be sufficient to describe lands in all proceedings relative to assessing, advertising or selling the same for taxes, by initial letters, abbreviations and figures to designate the township, range, section or part of a section, and also the number of the lots and blocks."

From the character of this provision and the nature of the subject there arises, in my judgment, a strong implication that in describing lands for such purpose initial letters shall not fee of the premises and entitled to the possession thereof, and that she recover the same with costs and expenses.

It may be thought that I have given this case more consideration than the amount at stake on it demands. But my excuse is, if any is needed, the importance of the questions involved in it, the uncertain and confused state of the law on the subject, and the further fact that I am required to construe and apply the revenue laws of the state touching questions that have not yet been passed on by its supreme court.

But while sitting in this Federal forum as a judge of the national government, I do not forget that the state is one of the pillars on which rests the fabric of that government; nor that I am a citizen of the former, and have as much interest in her well being and respect for her authority as any who may profess more in this respect.

Mr. H. B. Nicholas, for the plaintiff.
Mr. Robert Bybee, for the defendant.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, June 2.

Clear but cool weather today follows a heavy thunder storm and light rain last night. The Snake river reports a slight rise, and comparisons are as follows:

WHEAT—To-day being Whit Monday it is a bank holiday in England, and no reports have come through. Chicago opened one-eighth of a cent lower than it closed last Thursday, and San Francisco is weaker. Our market is quite flat.

OATS—Receipts continue in excess of the demand, and values are weak at 46@48c for good feed. Large sales were made to-day for milling account, which eases the situation somewhat. Oregon doubtless exceeds in oat raising, and produces a quality of oats for meal that the eastern states do not raise. Our local mills have not been able to successfully compete with the eastern mills in the production of oat meal because of the lack of improved machinery for its production. Among the sales of oats to-day was a large quantity for the Hillsboro mill. Mr. John Milne returned this morning from an extended trip east, and we learn that he has purchased such machinery as will enable local grinding to very materially reduce buying elsewhere if not altogether stop it.

CHICKENS—As an extreme $7 50 was had to-day; we quote $5@6 50.

EGGS—Stocks plentiful and 20 cents is still shaded for round lots.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 48 hours—835 ctls wheat, 336 bbls flour, 311 ctls oats, 3632 lbs wool, 1736 lbs hides, 76 cs eggs, 238 pkgs fruit, 8 bxs butter. Also 1030 bbls flour, 92,569 lbs wool, 3461 lbs hides from the eastern section.

SPRING

is the season in which bad or poisoned blood is most apt to show itself. Nature, at this juncture, needs something to assist it in throwing off the impurities which have collected by the sluggish circulation of the blood during the cold winter months. Swift's Specific is nature's great helper, as it is a purely vegetable alterative and tonic.

Rev. L. B. Paine, Macon, Ga., writes: "We have been using Swift's Specific at the orphans' home as a remedy for blood complaints, and as a general health tonic and have had remarkable results from its use on the children and employes of the institution. It is such an excellent tonic and keeps the blood so pure that the system is less liable to disease. It has cured some of our children of Scrofula."

W. H. Gilbert, druggist, Albany, Ga., writes: "We are selling large quantities of Swift's Specific for a spring alterative and general health tonic, and with the best results. It is now largely used as a preventive and cure for Malaria. There are many remarkable evidences of its merit in this section."

The Great Drug House of Chicago.

We do not hesitate to say that for a year past we have sold more of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) than all other Blood Purifiers combined, and with most astonishing results. One gentleman who used a half dozen bottles says it did him more good than treatment which cost him $1000. Another who has used it for a scrofulous affection reports a permanent cure from its use. VAN SHAACK, STEVENSON & CO.

One gentleman who had been confined to his bed six weeks with Mercurial Rheumatism has been cured entirely, and speaks in the highest praise of S. S. S. CHILES & BERRY, Chattanooga, Tenn.

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALE.—In the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon. In Admiralty. The Steam Ferry Boat "Albina," Nathan Hackett, et al., Libellants. United States of America, District of Oregon, ss.—Whereas, an order was made on the 6th day of May, 1884, by the Honorable Matthew P. Deady, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon, in a cause therein pending, wherein Nathan Hackett, et al., are libellants, against the Steam Ferry Boat "Albina," her tackle, apparel, machinery and furniture, commanding that the said Steam Ferry Boat "Albina," her tackle, apparel, machinery and furniture, should be sold by the Marshal of the United States for said District, as upon execution in an action at law, pursuant to the interlocutory sentence and decree of said court, made and pronounced on the 6th day of May, 1884, and that the money arising from such sale be paid to the Clerk of said Court on the first Monday of June, 1884—Now, therefore, I hereby give notice that, in pursuance of said order, I will, on Tuesday, the 27th day of May, 1884, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the wharf near the ferry landing, at Albina, in said District, where said vessel now lies, sell the said Steam Ferry Boat "Albina," her tackle, apparel, machinery and furniture, at public auction, to the highest bidder therefor for cash in hand.

Dated at Portland, said District, this 9th day of May, 1884. EDWARD S. KEARNEY, United States Marshal, District of Oregon.

S. DELL and J. G. CHAPMAN, Proctors for the Libellants.
P. L. WILLIS, Proctor for Respondent.

In pursuance of an order made and entered in the above entitled court on the 27th day of May, 1884, the above sale is postponed until Wednesday, June 18, 1884, at same time and place.

Smls EDWARD S. KEARNEY, U. S. Marshal.
